Voluntary producer action

Task force to fight PRV

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — A full-scale voluntary action program among pork producers is being launched by a Lancaster County Pseudorabies Task Force to combat the highly contagious disease which has infected more than 60 herds throughout the state since its outbreak in January, 1980.

The Pseudorabies Task Force, which is composed of producers, veterinarians, feedmen, marketers and educators, has prepared guidelines to voluntary action, which will be distributed to Lancaster County pork producers.

The Task Force also will hold two public meetings for pork producers to discuss the guidelines and answer any questions.

The pseudorabies meetings will be held:

—Monday, Sept. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bergstrasse Elementary School, east of Ephrata, near the junction of Rts. 222 and 322.

—Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

"The main objective of the program and the meetings is to motivate producers into participating in the voluntary action effort," according to Glenn Shirk, County Extension Agriculture Agent and member of the Task Force.

"We want to provide leadership and coordination for a voluntary effort and get everyone in the industry moving together in unison and in the same direction."

The Task Force began meeting several months ago to formulate the guidelines for voluntary action. Their preparation included researching the scope of the problem and the nature of the disease, analyzing the local area, investigating what other areas have done to combat pseudorabies and attempt to find any weak links

MCMP tally shows overwhelming 'yes'

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

BALTIMORE, Md. — Members of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., voted an overwhelming "Yes" on Monday to the proposed merger of the milk marketing cooperative with Dairyman, Inc., based in Louisville, Ky.

About 400 members converged at the Hunt Valley Inn for what became the Baltimore-based dairy producer co-op's last annual meeting.

To resounding applause, teller committee chairman Robert L. Grove announced when the 1152 cast votes had been tabulated, 1105 of them, or 94.93 percent of the total membership, had voted affirmative. Nays numbered 28, with 16 contracts voting neutral based on religious beliefs, and 3 ballots returned unmarked.

Members of MCMP had looked at merger possibilities for more than a decade. Monday's final balloting climaxed a series of impromptu "shade tree" field meetings and more formal district caucus sessions held to brief the 1165 members on all phases of the possible merger.

With the considerably more than two-thirds member approval needed for merger, MCMP will become the Middle-Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc.

At the close of the business day of August 31, 1981, the assets of the cooperative will be consolidated with those of Dairymen, Inc. and the Middle-Atlantic Division will start September 1 as one of a dozen districts of the large southeastern regional marketing cooperative.

"Dairymen, Inc., is our best alternative when considering the welfare of our dairy members," said MCMP president Fred Butler of Inwood, West Virginia. "They have a strong philosophy of Class I sales, are innovative in their Rock Springs — Over 70,000 visitors made the 1981 Pennsylvania Ag Progress Days one of the largest ever. The three-day event included more than $15 million worth of equipment from various exhibitors.

This year's Ag Progress Day was dedicated to outgoing agriculture dean James M. Beattie who is credited with the expansion and improvement of the field days.

"The annual event continues to gain in popularity, attracting both farmers and urban persons," says Joseph D. Harrington, Penn State professor of agronomy and field days general chairman. "There's something for everyone, including programs for women and youth."

A sea of visitors covered the grounds and kept the exhibitors and food concessions hopping. The large crowd proved once again this year, the need and the eagerness to keep up with the changing agricultural trends.

In various sections of the expansive 1500 acre research center, farmers found the latest techniques and equipment and watched demonstrations on mowing, chopping, baling, and much more.

Fungus creeps into Pa. fields

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

ROCK SPRINGS — An alfalfa-destroying fungus, uncommon to Pennsylvania, was recently reported in Centre County, a USDA spokesman said Thursday.

However, alfalfa varieties resistant to the fungus — verticillium wilt — should be available within the next two years, said Kenneth Leath, USDA Research Plant Pathologist at Penn State.

"It's (the fungus) not going to do the damage it could have done," Leath said.

He expressed confidence that the complex disease will not remove alfalfa from the state cropping system.

"The biggest impact in Pennsylvania," he said, "will be a change in varieties grown in the state."

Leath discovered the fungus last week on a Penn State farm and a private farm.

"We don't know how much is out

Omaha Cattle

Thursday, August 27
Report supplied by USDA

Through midweek, steers over 1125 lbs. 25-50 cents lower, under 1125 lbs. 50-1.00 lower, instances 1.50 lower as demand from feeding interests on 1000-1100 lbs. fleshy steers turned cautious; heifers 50-1.00 lower. Limited late trade test cows 2.00-2.50 higher, bulls steady to firm.

Steer and heifer prices declined Tuesday due to lower dressed trade. Small receipts Wednesday did not reflect recovery in dressed beef trade. Cow receipts very small and prices forced upward despite last week's cow beef market, midweek developments on imported beef further stimulating late demand. Average weight of steers purchased for slaughter is lighter this week due to feeding interests being mostly out of market. Average weight of heifers going to slaughter remains up as packer demand for weights under 950 lbs. continues narrow. Slaughter steers made up 45 pct of the estimated five day total; heifers 37 pct.; cows 9 pct.; feeders 7 pct.

By Sheila Miller, Editor

Biting the hand?

It seems that our legislators, both nationwide and statewide, are looking out for everyone but farmers.

These politicians are concerned about food when it comes to the welfare of people in Poland and to the consumer who walks into a supermarket with food stamps gripped in his hands, but they seem to be forgetting the people who make their toying with food possible — the farmers.

Just recently, Iowa Congressman Tom Harkin, chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee with jurisdiction over the nation's dairy program, stated the "U.S should help ease the food shortage in Poland by shipping 165 million pounds of surplus U.S. cheese to the Polish people as a positive sign of support for their determination to resist Soviet domination."

Little did most dairy producers know they were the chosen ones to serve as foreign ambassadors to Poland — *at their own ex*pense.

Under the federal govern*ment's dairy price support* program, the Commodity Credit Corporation acquired 275.9 million pounds of processed cheese at a cost of $392.8' million dollars. According to Harkin, the Reagan Administration has expressed concern over the cost of storing the stocks and that there is some concern the stocks may soon begin to spoil

Harkin said the "U S. should use the stocks to further its humanitarian and political goals, rather than let the stocks spoil and become worthless." He said the U S could provide the cheese either as a direct donation or through concessionary sales at the rate of 5 pounds for every man, woman and child.

At the same time, the Reagan Administration announced it had negotiated a 5 year grain agreement ex*tension between the USSR* and the U.S.. This agreement requires the U.S. to sell at least 6 million metric tons of grain to the Soviets next year.

That was one vote in favor of the farmer — freedom from the embargo.

But in the same breath, the Reagan Administration turned around and said the Soviets could buy no surplus U.S. butter Instead, they announced they would sell the 220 million pounds of butter the Soviets offered to buy at $1.05 a pound to New Zealand at the price of 70 cents a pound.

Once again, farmers are the fall guys for political maneuvering.

As a result, the U.S. will be selling about half of its surplus butter to New Zealand for $50 million less than the Soviets were willing to pay.

A Washington spokesman pointed out that while the contract prohibits New Zealand from direct sales of U.S Butter to the Soviets, nothing prohibits them from selling their own butter to Moscow, or selling the U.S. butter to a third party who could then sell it to the Soviets.

"If New Zealand sells it at the world price — which it will, you can be sure — it stands to make a cool $50 million."

The American dairy farmer is providing the ammunition for New Zealand, a country that floods the U.S with casein, to make a windfall profit — and at whose expense?

As if that's not enough of a slap in the face for the dairy farmer, this past week the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine sent out a news release over the wire service announcing the results of a three year study it had conducted on bovine leukemia virus, transmitted in raw milk and its possible effects on humans This research was funded by Pennsylvania's Agriculture Research Committee.

This release went out to all the news media across the nation Imagine the impact this kind of 'news' will have on milk consumption — remember what happened to pork?

Even though Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell "pooh-poohs" the effect of this kind of information being released to the general public, we feel it could be devastating. All the consumer has to hear is cancer being linked to anything and that product will become the object of total abhorrance. In this case, milk has been linked with leukemia — most consumers won't care two hoots if the report did say bovine — most won't know what the word means anyway. The damage is done, perhaps inadvertantly, but irreversibly.

Since the research data only related to cattle, why in the world did PDA and U. of P. release that kind of in*formation to a general* audience Why not get the story to the farmers through their in-house magazines The results would have been much less alarming and more beneficial

But, in order to get more funding, the researchers needed to make a big splash — get the most mileage on their 'discovery' They admitted more studies had to be done to see whether there are any links between bovine leukemia virus and humans.

It looks like the dairy producers will be footing another research bill, whether they want to or not

This 'bad press' not only affects dairy producers but other farmers as well

A recent new release based on a controversial study of soy products conducted by University of Kansas Medical Center's James Cook prompted this response from American Soybean Association President Charles Hamon, a soybean farmer from Valley Falls, Kansas:

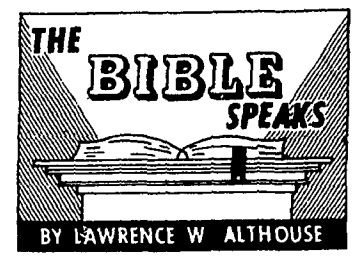
"Scientific studies conducted or funded by government agencies should be subjected to peer review by qualified scientists prior to their release to the general public and news media."

The study which is being challenged indicates diets containing soy protein inhibits the body's ability to use iron.

When will these politicians learn — you don't/ bite the hand that feeds you?

Stop using food as a political 'weapon'

And, apply the "We're Growing Better" promotion to the attitudes of state officials and legislators for the farmers they represent.



HONEY FROM A ROCK

August 30, 1981

Background Scripture:
Deuteronomy 31:30 through 32:14.
Devotional Reading:
1 Kings 19:9-18.

Teilhard de Chardin, the brilliant Roman Catholic priest and scientist, writes or tells of "testing-time" that he experienced in his life. Like many of us, he sought comfort and support in various things and persons around him. But one by one they were peeled away, until it seemed that nothing else remained.

But this experience, says Teilhard, "did not bring me unalleviated sorrow. On the contrary, a glorious, unsuspected joy invaded my soul: because, in the collapse of those immediate supports I had risked giving to my life, I knew with a unique experiential certainty that I would never again rely for support on anything save your own divine stability." (Hymn of the Universe).

The Perfect Rock

Teilhard's experience has been particularly helpful to me, for I too found God most real at a time in my life when all other supports had been elimated or neutralized one by one. All my life I had lived by the conviction that with diligent thought, hard work and faith in God, there was no problem that I could not solve, no situation I could not master. Then, one day, I was faced with the realization that all my clear thinking and hard work were not sufficient for the situation that confronted me. Like Teilhard, I found that all I had left was my trust in God.

I came out of that experience, not despising or forsaking clear thinking and hard work — I still believe in them — but realizing that these, like all the other human supports to which we look for help, are limited and finite and sometimes are just not enough. When that happens, only trust in God can bring us through. Then we are led to sing with Moses: "The Rock, his work is perfect; for all his ways are justice. A God of faithfulness and without iniquity, just and right is he" (Deuteronomy 32:4).

Found In A Desert

Sometimes it is only when we find ourselves lost in a desert wilderness of disappointments, failures, sins, and false solutions, that we come to know God face to face. This is how Israel first encountered God: "He found him in a desert land, and in the howling waste of the wilderness" (32:10). Destitute, despised, alone, the people had nowhere else to turn but to God.

Yet, in the midst of such an experience there is often life's sweetest discovery: the faithful love of God! It was in the desert that God proved his love to Israel, leading, feeding and sustaining him: "and he made him suck honey out of the rock" (30:13).

God forbid that you should have to encounter God thus. God, if you find yourself in one of life's barren deserts, remember to look for the Rock, and the sweetness that can be yours even in the wilderness.

To Cut Corn Silage at Proper Stage

Corn silage can provide a large part of the stored feed needed on a dairy farm. Therefore, it's important to keep a close watch on corn intended for silage.

Both the nutrient content and preservation of silage are affected by the stage of harvest and moisture content. For best feeding results, dairymen should harvest corn silage in the full dent stage of maturity. The total corn plant at this stage has close to 70 percent moisture which is ideal with a grain moisture of 35 to 40 percent. The grain content is also higher than that of corn cut at an earlier stage.

High moisture is one problem that has troubled many dairymen in storing high quality silage. High moisture can result in a loss of nutrients resulting from seepage of juices from the silo. Too much moisture also results in a bad odor, and consumption drops.

On the other hand, corn cut at a late stage of maturity will create problems, because it won't thoroughly pack...excluding the air. Poorly packed silage will shrink and pull away from the silo walls and spoilage results.

To Take Fair-Time Precautions

Fair-time is rapidly approaching, and this is a good time to start making necessary precautions to help prevent the possibility of you taking diseases to the fair or bring infections home to your farm, according to Glenn Shirk, Dairy Agent. Many fairs require health charts and specific tests or vaccinations. Be sure to read the health regulations carefully. And, it does not hurt to be more strict than what the regulations may require. Animals with any form of communicable ailment should be left at home. This may include such problems are ringworm, pink eye, warts, mange, hoof rot, respiratory problems, scours, etc. With the presence of pseudorabies in the county, it would be wise not to have hogs in close association with any other livestock. When animals leave the fair and go home, it is always good to have a place where you can isolate them and observe them closely for a period of time before introducing them to their herdmates. If in doubt, consult your veterinarian for advice.

To Apply For Gasoline Tax Refund

I would like to remind our farmers that application for the Pennsylvania Liquid Fuel Tax should be filed by September 30.

Farmers may apply for an 11 cent per gallon refund on all liquid fuels used in non-licensed tractors when used off the highway for agricultural purposes or non-licensed power farm machinery used for actual farm work. This includes fuel used in all auxiliary engines on balers, elevators and other stationary equipment.

The liquid fuel tax refund is for all farm production fuel used between July 1, 1980 and June 30, 1981.

The people who have not already received applications should apply by writing: Board of Finance and Revenue, Room 409, Finance Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120, giving their full name and address or by calling 717-787-3365.

Remember, applications received after September 30 will not be honored; they must be filed on time.

To Apply Lime

Early fall is a good time to apply lime on open fields. For land that is to be seeded to legumes in 1982, now would be the best time to correct any soil acidity. For lime to react properly with the soil, it should be applied well in advance of a new legume seeding; also, it should be well mixed with the topsoil. The soil should be tested to determine the amount of lime needed. Keep in mind that heavy lime trucks can ruin a wet field next spring. So, give lime a chance to correct acidity both in terms of time and mixture.

WATER WAR

Re: House bill #1483
Printer's #1723

Fellow Pennsylvanians:

House bill 1483 is a dangerous infringement on the FREEDOM and PROPERTY RIGHTS of all citizens of the Commonwealth. You should request a free copy from your representative.

HB 1483 provides for another TAX on your right to drink water from your own well or spring. Page 40 line 10

HB 1483 confiscates your rights to all water on your own land. The bill says;

> The water resources of this Commonwealth are public natural resources held in trust by the Commonwealth for the benefit of all the people. Page 7 line 18

Fellow American, that is right out of the Communist manifesto. That is the doctrine of HITLER-MARX-CASTRO-MAO...IT IS NOT A PART OF THE BILL OF RIGHTS or of THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION or THE CONSTITUTION OF THIS COMMONWEALTH. It is not the doctrine of WASHINGTON, JEFFERSON.

While you read this sentence someone is dying trying to escape the tyrany proposed for all Pennsylvanians by HB 1483.

HB 1483 provides the right of EMINENT DOMAIN for not only a bureaucracy of the Commonwealth but for certain public utilities-the right to CONFISCATE the water from your well, even after you paid for a permit. Page 36 Line 1-17

HB 1483 provides that you MUST permit AGENTS of the department to ENTER and EXAMINE ANY PROPERTY (your home)- you must GIVE THE AGENTS free and unrestricted ENTRY and ACCESS. P42.

I am not suggesting that those members of the House who introduced HB 1483 are communists or communist agents. I am suggesting that they have not read the language of the bill. I am suggesting that every member of the House examine the bill and the effects it will have on the FREEDOM of ALL PENNSYLVANIANS. NO ONE CAN SUPPORT THE CONSTITUTION AND THIS LEGISLATION.

The bill was introduced by

Ephrata readies for annual fair

EPHRATA — Preparations are underway once more for the opening of the 63rd Ephrata Fair beginning Tuesday, September 22 and continuing through Saturday, September 26. A tradition, originally celebrating the homecoming of World War I veterans, has grown into Pennsylvania's largest steer fair drawing over 200,000 persons each year.

The parade, highlighting the five day affair, begins its march through the streets of Ephrata at seven o'clock on Wednesday evening, September 23, (rain date - September 24.)

Drawing over 65,000 viewers each year, the parade consists of well balanced blend of high school bands, marching groups, and numerous floats. Also positioned throughout the parade are the lovely Miss Lancaster County Pageant Contestants. Marching last, the Warwick High 1981 Honor Band, will close the parade with a presentation in front of the viewing stand on Lake Street.

Featured throughout the week are various displays of crafts, needlework and farm produce brought in by exhibitors from Ephrata and surrounding communities.

The J.J. Newberry Store will be housing the baked, canned and dried goods, jellies, flowers, and crafts.

Art work will be on display in the Texgas Corporation Showroom on South State Street. The former Reading Co. Station on East Main Street will exhibit 4-H clothing, needlework, etc. The vegetable, fruit and nut tent will be set-up to the rear of the railroad station. Due to a successful 1980 exhibition, the Photography Department returns and will be located in the basement of the J.J. Newberry. For further information on all exhibits, entry times and locations, check the Ephrata Fair Premium Book.

"Tent City", the agricultural portion and foundation on which the fair was built, is located in the Ephrata Community Park. Serving as temporary host to the baby beef, cattle, swine and poultry, "Tent City" becomes the main point of interest during the judging of the livestock.

Also on display to the public are tobacco, grain, forage, various farm exhibits and mini displays by youth groups. For the convenience of the public, a shuttle bus will again be provided, free of charge, to "Tent City" on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

On Thursday afternoon, between one and six o'clock, the Ephrata Fair rolls out the red carpet for all school age children, with a friendly clown welcoming all youngsters to the fair. Since this is "Kiddies Day", every child is given special reduced rates for rides, including some old favorites like the ferris wheel and merry-go-round.

As in past years, the Baby Parade will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. Consisting of various floats and colorful costumes, the little competitors and a delightful note to the afternoon.

Climaxing the week's activities is the Miss Lancaster County Scholarship Pageant to be held in the Ephrata High School Auditorium on Saturday at 8 p.m. As a forerunner to the Miss Pennsylvania Pageant, the contestants will compete in various categories including talent and poise.

Pennsylvania's Three Top Alfalfa Producers

Champion growers Norman and Harold Davis of Huntingdon, owners of Daland Farms, and Apollo variety alfalfa from RP Seeds.

When Harold and Norman Davis entered the 1980 State Alfalfa Growers Program, they knew the competition would be tough, that it would take a lot to win first place. A lot of yield... pounds of protein... and TDN produced over the entire growing season.

That meant careful planning, proper management and a little luck with the weather. Plus the best alfalfa stand on their entire dairy operation.

The Davis brothers' choice to win? A two-year old field of Apollo, the alfalfa variety bred to beat Phytophthora root rot ("wet foot" disease) and deliver high yields of consistently top quality hay.

The result: Apollo yielded 8.6 tons per acre, with 3,410 pounds of protein and 9,765 pounds of TDN.

And Harold and Norman Davis won first place to become Pennsylvania's 1980 State Champion alfalfa growers.

Energy Day promotes new power sources

DILLSBURG — Energy Saving and efficient sources of power were the highlight of the energy field day sponsored by J&J Agri-products on Saturday.

Displays of all sorts energy saving equipment was on display at the Agrispon building; Solar Panels and wood stoves were included among the more unique displays of electric cars and wind generators.

The main feature of the energy day was the demonstration of the windmill that will be used to preheat the water for heating the building. A generator at the top of the windmill's tower produces electricity for batteries, where it is stored until needed.

"It takes a wind of 7 mph to generate electricity," according to James McHale, general manager of J&J Agri-products. McHale added that the average winds around his building were 10 mph.

McHale had no figures on cost installation nor how much it would actually save his company.

"But it will save us money an the tax credit alone," he stated.

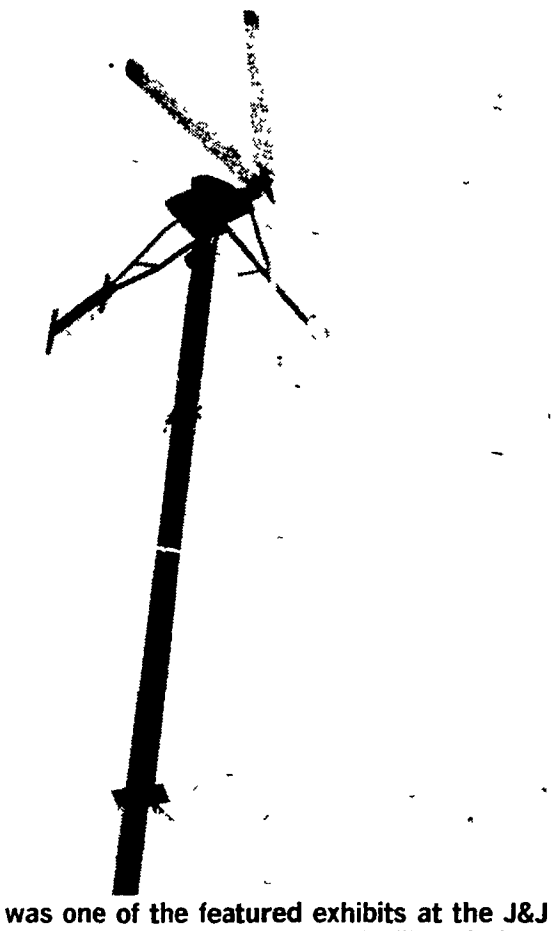
Another highlight of the energy fair was the Bussure Electric Car. This Dodge colt pickup truck will travel 80 miles on fully charged batteries. A windmill similar to the one previously mentioned is used to power the batteries. When the trips are longer than 80 miles, a 20 HP air cooled, gasoline motor which gives over 70 miles to the gallon powers the car.

Also featured as an added attraction to the energy day, was the earth sheltered home. This home combines solar, wood and other techniques that will hopefully reduce the amount of energy needed to heat the home.

The final exhibit featured at the Energy Day was a demonstration on Alcohol fuels by J.E. Stabley, York. Stabley explained the distillation process behind alcohol fuels and had finished products available on display.

"This process is especially good for farmers," Stabley said. The alcohol produced will make farm machines run better, the carbon dioxide can be used to make plants grow better in green houses, and the corn that remains in a very concentrated source of protein.

"The Distillard Grains contain three times, the protein in the same amount of corn," Stabley stressed.



This windmill was one of the featured exhibits at the J&J Agri-Spon Products Energy Day held last week. The windmill is used to preheat the water that heats the Agri-Spon building, site of the field day.

'Vote Yes for Water' campaign makes first splash

HARRISBURG — A statewide campaign seeking voter approval of a $300 million water projects bond issue (House Bill 1484) on the November 3 ballot was kicked off here on Monday.

Rocky Bleier, honorary chairman of the Vote Yes For Water Committee, said, "Water is a resource we can no longer take for granted. Most Pennsylvanians think of water problems as something that exist only in other parts of the nation. We now know that is not true."

The state's credit would be used to borrow money at a lower interest rate than otherwise possible. There are not state subsidies involved. The loans would be paid back by the water companies, authorities or local governments which borrowed the money.

According to George Wolff, chairman of the newly-formed Committee, a wide variety of organizations are already behind this effort, including providing financial support

Don Payne, executive vice-president of the Pennsylvania Builders Association, presented the first check to Wolff, a $1000 contribution.

Officers of the Committee are Chairman Wolff, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors; Vice Chairwoman Carol Eshleman, of the League of Women Voters; Secretary Charles Wismer, of the Pennsylvania State Grange; Treasurer Wilson Lewis, of the Dauphin Deposit Bank in Harrisburg; Finance Chairman John Ware, former United States Congressman; Enabling Legislation Committee Chairman Paul Hess, of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce; and Public Relations Chairman David Kirkpatrick, of the Association of Pennsylvania State Colleges and University Faculties.

The following are some frequently asked questions about this $300 million capital investment program.

WHY A REFERENDUM?

The Pennsylvania Constitution specifies that debt can be incurred on behalf of the Commonwealth for projects not of an emergency nature, such as disasters, or not specifically itemized in a capital budget, only with the approval of the voters. There are constitutional limitations on projects specifically itemized in a capital budget. Because this program has extensive public impact, the Governor and the General Assembly feel that the voters should determine public policy on this issue.

HOW MUCH WILL THESE LOANS COST PENNSYLVANIA TAXPAYERS?

No taxpayer dollars will be used for these loans. The loan money will be raised through the sale of bonds paid back by the companies, authorities or local governments borrowing the money. Some administrative costs will be in the Commonwealth's General Budget in future years (taxpayer dollars).

WHY IS THE COMMONWEALTH PROPOSING THIS PROGRAM AT THIS TIME?

Pennsylvania is facing serious public health and safety, environmental and economic problems because of deteriorating water supply systems. Many of these facilities are small and lack the necessary capital base, revenue and management and technical skill to develop and maintain adequate water systems. The vitality of the Commonwealth depends on restoring the systems that provide this most precious resource for our domestic, agricultural and industrial activities.

WHY IS THE COMMONWEALTH ASSISTING PRIVATE COMPANIES AS WELL AS MUNICIPALITIES?

The intent behind the proposed loan program is to make needed funds available so that as many Pennsylvanians as possible can benefit. Sound water supply systems, safe dams, flood control projects and adequte port facilities benefit the general public by providing for health and safety and the basis for economic development in the Commonwealth.

WHO WILL BE ELIGIBLE TO RECEIVE THESE LOANS?

Generally, any owner of a community water supply system, water supply dam or port facility would be eligible to receive a loan under this program In addition, municipalities would be eligible to receive loans for flood control projects.

WHAT CRITERIA WILL BE USED TO DETERMINE WHICH FACILITIES RECEIVE LOANS?

The most important factors which will be considered in choosing which facilities receive loans will be those which demonstrate existing or potential health, safety or inadequacy problems. Another important consideration will be financial need and the ability to maintain the facilities and to repay the loans. In addition, facilities which would further economic development efforts in the state also would be considered.

HOW WILL THE AMOUNT OF MONEY LOANED FOR INDIVIDUAL FACILITIES BE DETERMINED?

The procedures for administering the program and the criteria for setting priorities will be established in the enabling legislation, which will be acted upon after the referendum is approved. The enabling legislation will be considered in the committee structure in the General Assembly This will provide an opportunity for input from the public and private sectors concerning the use of the funds.

WHO WILL ADMINSITER THE PROGRAM?

The Department of Environmental Resources would administer the portions of the program related to water supply systems, dams and flood control projects. The Department of General Services would administer the portions of the program relating to restoring port facilities.

WHY IS THE STATE ASSISTING PRIVATE, PROFIT-MAKING COMPANIES?

The intent of this loan program is to make needed funds available to all community water systems so that as many Pennsylvanians as possible can benefit from the initiative.

WHY IS A REFERENDUM NECESSARY?

The Pennsylvania Constitution specifies that debt can be incurred on behalf of the Commonwealth for projects not included in a capital budget or of an emergency nature only with the approval of the voters.

WHY ISSUE BONDS FOR THIS PROGRAM?

The capital needs of public water suppliers are more than the available current revenues. The funds will be invested in physical improvements which will benefit water users for many years. The use of borrowed funds with annual repayments is an appropriate method of distributing costs to the system users over the useful life of the improvements.

WHY SHOULD THE STATE RAISE THE MONEY RATHER THAN THE MUNICIPALITIES OR PRIVATE COMPANIES?

Many water supply systems have difficulty raising money because they are small businesses or authorities with limited revenues, and cannot get credit for large loans

WHY HAVEN'T THESE PRIVATE COMPANIES INCRESED THEIR RATES TO FINANCE RESTORATION PROJECTS?

Private utilities are regulated, in the public interest, by the Public Utility Commission. Unlike municipal water suppliers, which may raise their rates to reflect increased costs as long as the rates are reasonable, private companies must apply to the PUC for rate increases. PUC regulations do not allow private utilities to increase their rates to pay for new facilities or improvements until after those facilities are in service. This means that the private company cannot finance improvements by increasing revenues. Many of the small, private utilities do not have the financial ability to raise credit for such projects.

WHICH WATER SUPPLIERS ARE REGULATED BY THE PUC?

All privately owned water supply systems and those public ones which provide service outside their municipal boundaries are regulated by the PUC.

ISN'T THIS PROGRAM RISKY? WILL THE COMMONWEALTH BE STUCK IF A WATER SUPPLY SYSTEMS DEFAULTS ON A LOAN?

One part of the loan process will be to review the financial and organizational structure of these systems. Before granting loans, the Commonwealth will seek to assure that water systems become properly organized and arrange their finances to be able to repay the loans. In the event of a default, the enabling legislation for the loans can establish procedures for collection of revenue, including liens and receiverships to secure loans. The primary assurance the Commonwealth has is the provision of technical organizational and financial assistance to these systems at the time they accept loans, to assure that they will become viable over the long term.

WHAT IS DER'S POSITION ON THE BOND ISSUE?

DER enthusiastically supported the House Bill to place the question of the bond issue on the ballot. Now that the bill has been enacted into law, the question is strictly one for the voters. DER supports the bond issue as presented to the voters. There role is to now provide factual information based on its expertise in the areas of water supply, dams and flood control when asked by the citizens and their groups. Should the voters approve the bond issue, DER will work with the General Assembly in preparing suitable enabling legislation.

NCFC appoints Howell

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives announces the appointment of James P. Howell as director, federal energy affairs.

In this post, he will report to the NCFC vice president of energy resources. He will work on all aspects of various energy proposals before Congress, as well as energy regulations proposed by government agencies that pertain to agriculture.

PROGRESS DAYS

Report by Lancaster Farming's

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

Fire safety demonstrations were held Tuesday and Wednesday for the more than 60,000 that attended these days. Above you, see a comparison burning of three types of insulation: polyurethane, polystyrene, and polysocyanurate, respectively. The purpose? To prove how fast polyurethane and polystyrene burn and their ineffectiveness in safety. The polysocyanurate held up much longer and burned slower.

A solid human wall forms as visitors draw near the corn chopping demonstration for a closer look.

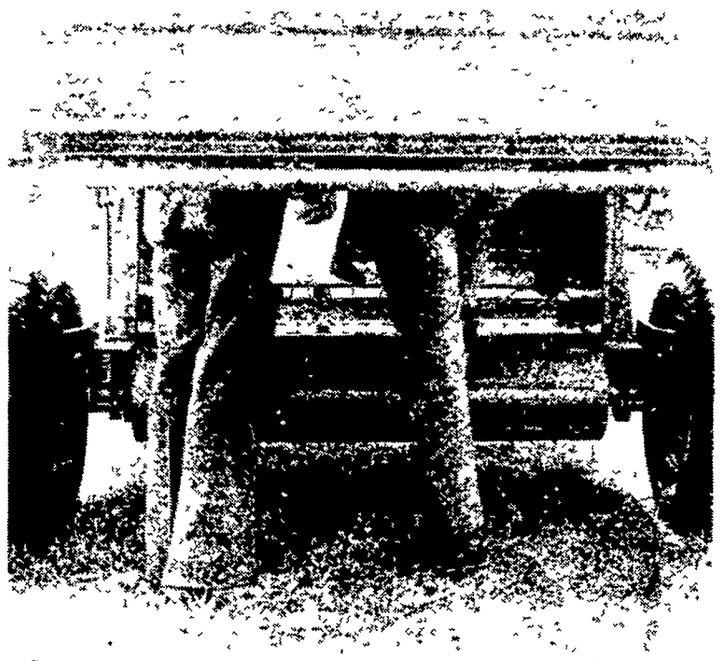
Visitors find more than one use for machinery

Adams County dairyman Millard Basehoar, Littlestown, gave this hay mower the once over following a demonstration. Although Ag Progress Days gave farmers such as Basehoar a chance to scrutinize the latest machinery, other visitors had different uses in mind.

they played on it

Most youngsters at the three-day event turned the exhibits into a veritable playground. Lou Ann Cunningham, 5, put herself in the driver seat of this small tractor. Lou Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cunningham, McConnellsburg.

they examined it



Some people just weren't satisfied with passing glances of the $15 million worth of equipment on hand.

...they even ate on it

With more than 40,000 visitors on Tuesday, sufficient seating at lunchtime was as scarce as hen's teeth. This resourceful group of Bloomsburg dairy farmers found that a chisel plow made an excellent picnic table. From left to right the group includes Sam Robbins, Donald and Kathy Bowman and Joan and Randy Robbins.

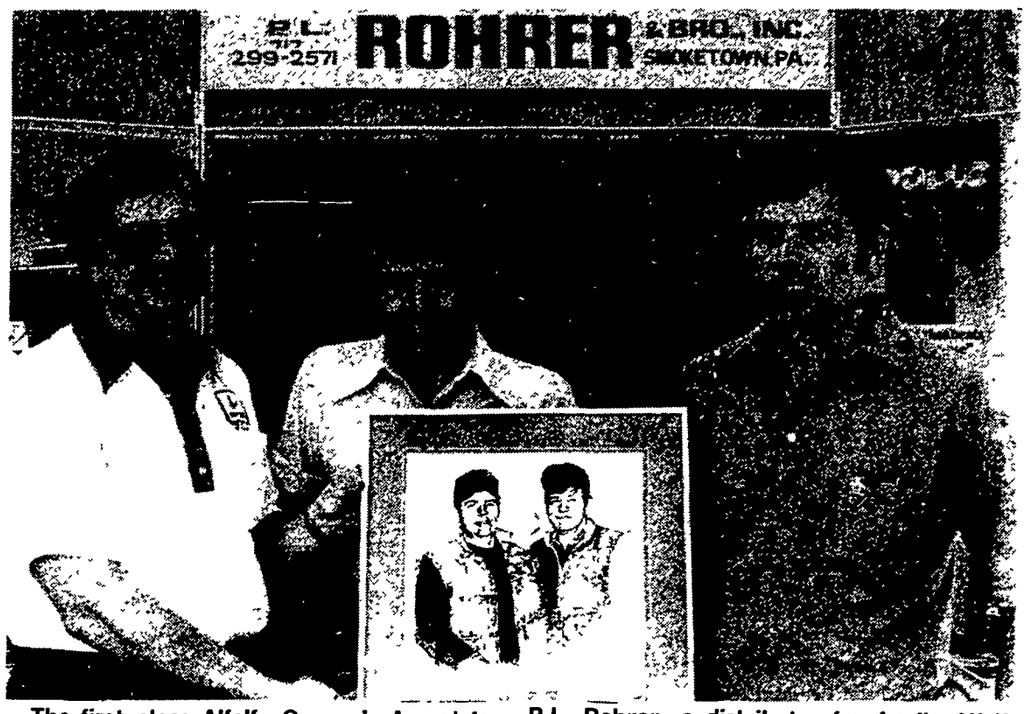
Something for everyone

Soil Conservationist Bill Stoner, right, explains the merits of "concrete mattress" as a conservation practice. Made of nylon fibers and grouting concrete, the mattress helps prevent erosion.



The first place Alfalfa Grower's Award for 1980, a framed picture of the winners sketched by an artist, was given to Harold (center) and Norman Davis (right) of Huntingdon. The Davis' own and operate Daland Farm. Presenting the award is Jerry Roman from P.L. Rohrer, a distributor for Apollo Alfalfa from North American Plant Breeders. The award is co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Grasslands Council and the Penn State University.

Not everything was new

The popular Pasto Museum, opened for the first time last year, once again offered spectators fews and memories of yesteryear.

As part of the machinery demonstrations held periodically each day, the hay making demonstration drew one of the largest crowds. The major attraction, other than each model's performance, seemed to be those big round bales - of interest to young and old alike.

PENN STATE'S AG PROGRESS DAYS

Report by Lancaster Farming's roaming photographers

The Grand Champion, left, and Reserve Grand Champion hay samples were both submitted by Jay McCarrell of Eighty-Four at the 1981 State Hay Show held during Ag Progress Days. Both Samples are partially field cured plus heat dried with no hay preservative.

Hay show attracts record number exhibits

ROCK SPRINGS — Ag Progress Days hosted the largest state hay show to date said John Baylor, extenstion forage agronomist.

Jay McCarrell from Eighty-Four submitted the Grand and Reserve Champion forage sample.

Judge Clarence Bryner, retired extension agronomist chose McCarrell's entries over the 270 other entries.

McCarrell's samples were both partially field cured plus heat dried with no hay preservative. The Grand Champion sample was a later cutting of alfalfa that contained 20.3 percent crude protein, 30.8 percent acid detergent fiber and 65 percent total digestible nutrients.

The Reserve Grand Champion entry was an alfalfa and grass mix with 20.7 percent CP, 31.7 percent ADF and 63 percent TDN.

In the 1981 State Hay-Crop Silage show, Judge Bryner chose a legume and legume-grass wilted sample submitted by Milton Hershey School Farms, Hershey.

The sample contained 40 percent dry matter, 22.5 percent CP, 32.2 percent ADF and 66 percent TDN.

Folly Hollow Farm, Inc., Washington, exhibited the Reserve Grand Champion, also a legume and legume-grass wilted mixture.

Ag Progress Days had something for everyone including the littlest of farmers. Jason Martin, 16 months, finds these young goats quite interesting. Jason is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin, Waynesboro.

Food firms recognized for PA ag promotion

ROCK SPRINGS — Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell presented certificates of recognition to ten central Pennsylvania food firms, Wednesday, at the Ag Progress Days Theatre Building following food demonstrations and the 2nd Annual Pennsylvania Vegetable Recipe Contest.

The ten firms are all part of the state's "Pennsylvania We're Growing Better" logo promotion program, and will be honored for their contributions to the promotion and understanding of Pennsylvania agricultı

Hallowell said that the program, which uses a special logo and the slogan to identify Pennsylvania products, is an example of the cooperation needed in agriculture to improve marketing efforts. He said, "Through the use of the We're Growing Better logo and through special promotions both at the processing and retail level, consumers are getting a better idea of the great quantity and diversity of food needs that can be met by Pennsylvania companies."

"As consumer demand increases for these Pennsylvania products, our agriculture related businesses will have the incentive to expand, creating jobs, cutting transportation and enery costs, and boosting the local economies," Hallowell noted.

"These firms, and the 110 other companies throughout the state now using the logo are to be commended for their public spirit and for their determination to work with us to improve economic development efforts in Pennsylvania's rural communities," Hallowell said.

The firms which will receive certificates of recognition are:

Farmers should 'sing out of same hymnal'

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY — Farmers must do a better job of education and communication, learn to speak with one unified voice and be more effective in partisam politics if they are to succeed in the challenges they face, according to John Carlin, governor of the state of Kansas.

Carlin, a well-known Holstein breeder from that state, spoke to the National Association of Animal Breeders at their annual convention in Kansas City, and offered his views on challenges from a political perspective.

An article spokesman, as well as a knowledgeable dairyman, Carlin spoke plainly about the need for farmers to get involved politically.

He said, "We have not done very well in the political arena. We don't understand it. But the time is past when we could get along without it - we will have to make adjustments."

He acknowledged that without the strong record of agriculture in the past, the national economy would be in "further disarray." But he added, "Fewer and fewer farmers means fewer and fewer votes. We must be more politically adept at what we're doing."

In the political arena, Carlin said, "We need to support those who are with us. We must all do our best within the political framework our system provides."

Farmers may be proud of their independence, but Carlin pointed out, "In the political world our independence is killing us. No other segment in the country speaks with so many voices. We aren't singing out of the same hymnal. Until we do something about it we'll continue to fail, and continue not to be heard."

He added, "We don't have the luxury of being independent. We've got to work together."

Carlin said farmers must work in the area of education, and not just to educate others. "There are those in agriculture who need to better understand what's going on. We need to be on top of things in terms of management and take advantage of the latest technology."

There is a real need to communicate with those outside agriculture, and explain the importance of exports and research. "We need to educate the public on the value of exports and show the consumers the benefits from exports." Carlin called exports "a great opportunity for farmers. If it is to help the farmers a lot of people have to understand."

Carlin stated, "We have to take our technology overseas. It is a short-sided assumption to ask 'Why share what we know?' If we share and assist developing nations in developing their economy they'll be able to afford to purchase more."

He told farmers they must take the issue of animal rights seriously. "If we don't educate ourselves and communicate that education to others we'll find ourselves with legislation that will greatly alter what we know. It will require our full understanding and then we must take action."

Research should also not be taken for granted, according to Carlin. With further budget cuts, he said, "They'll be looking for programs." He pointed out that the research done today is necessary five or ten years in the future.

Carlin noted, "Things won't happen just because we're right. We must practice and believe in education and communication."

Carlin graduated from Kansas State University where he was a member of the dairy judging team. A democrat, he served in the legislature and was elected to the position of minority leader in the senate before successfully running for the office of governor.

He is an active partner in Carlin Holsteins and has a beef operation as well.

Broiler numbers drop

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending August 15 were 2,080,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were nine percent below the corresponding week a year ago and 14 percent below the previous week. Average placements during the past nine weeks were two percent above a year ago.

Placements in the 19 key poultry producing states were 77,574,000, 15 percent above the same week a year earlier but one percent below the previous week. Average placements in the 19 key states during the past nine weeks were six percent above a year ago.

York sheep producers feast at picnic

YORK — Trading ideas, getting help with problems and making new friends were just some of the things the York County Sheep and Wool Producers gathered to do last Saturday at the York Fiddlers Association picnic grounds.

The idea for the picnic according to Susan Dutrey, executive secretary of the association was to "provide the members a place to get together, meet one another, and eat some good bar-b-q young lamb."

The approximate 100 sheep producers in attendance polished off four young lambs donated by Honey Valley Farm in Dallstown. The lambs were roasted over an open charcoal fire, with nothing but salt to flavor the meat.

"We hope this will be our first annual lamb picnic," stated Mac McGuigan, one of the chief cooks at the bar-b-que.

"The main purpose of the picnic is to teach people, especially shepherds themselves, how really good lamb is," he added.

Sheep producers, not only from the York county area, but Lancaster, Adams, Berks and Carroll County, Md. were also present to join in the fun. Everyone was heard to be trading ideas on everything from dog training to the price of lambs; from who was winning at the show to that special lambing program.

After the meal everyone joined together to watch and participate in a hand-clapping country western style dance.-LD

Enforcer twins calved at Spring Bottom Farm

BY M.H. GITT
Staff Correspondent

FAIRFIELD — When a Polled Hereford breeder arranges to have his champion cow bred by one of the top bulls in the nation, he spends the next nine months hoping and praying for a strong healthy calf. But, in the case of Frank and Becky Darcey, Jr.'s top cow, VH Westy Hilger 07, the match with national champion Enforcer 107H produced twice what they bargained for — twin bull calves.

"I didn't know she was carrying twins," remarked Frank, who has been premier exhibitor at the Pennsylvania Farm Show for the past two years. "She went and had them unassisted at 2 a.m. — one weighed 65 pounds and the other was about 75 pounds. The normal weight of a single calf is between 65 and 100 pounds."

While the twins' weights may have been normal, everything else was not starting with their pedigree. Darcey's cow, Westy, was six months old in September of 1978 when she was purchased in Montana and brought East. She went to the 1979 Pennsylvania Farm Show and was selected reserve grand champion. She returned the next year as a cow and won the grand champion banner.

This remarkable female's other wins include grand champion at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, reserve grand champion at the Eastern National Livestock Exposition; reserve grand champion at Maryland State Fair; grand champion at York Fair; reserve junior champion at Virginia State Fair; grand champion at the Delaware State Fair and grand champion at the Cumberland County Fair.

Her first calf, S.B.F. Royal Rancher, had a weaning weight of 640 pounds, giving Westy an inherd ratio of 117, or about 17 points above normal. Rancher was sold to Larry Henry of Jolly Jill Farms, Hanover.

The twins' sire was the breed's first million dollar bull and is a certified "Gold Standard Sire", which means his offspring have done well at shows and have passed performance tests at evaluation centers for good meat quality.

Enforcer is owned by a group of herd breeders including Falkands Farms, Shellsburg; Pudding River Polled Herefords, Salem, Oregon; R.W.J. Polled Herefords Ranch, Georgia; and Wolfe Polled Herefords, Walla, Washington.

Meanwhile, the twins, which Becky calls Moe and Joe, are still on the farm and growing bigger.

Spring Bottom Farm's top female, VH Westy Hilger 07 surprised the Adams County Polled Hereford breeder, Frank Darcey, Jr. by producing two bull calves by national champion bull Enforcer 107H.

Speakers to highlight sheep workshop

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Speakers from all across the nation will be on hand to spread their knowledge about the sheep industry to any interested sheep producer at the Eastern Sheep Production Workshop. The workshop is to be held on October 17 at the Caroll County Agricultural Center, here beginning at 9:30 a.m.

The program is designed to include information on the basics of sheep production and management for beginning sheepmen. Along with the basics, the program is designed to provide information for more experienced sheepmen also with programs on economics, profits and increasing reproductive efficiency.

The novice sheepmen will get hands-on experience with some basic management techniques during the morning session. Techniques such as foot trimming, castration, docking, and vaccinations will be demonstrated by Emory Leffel, Professor of Animal Science, University of Maryland and Rick Lund, professional shepherd from Great Britain.

The vast opportunities available in the sheep industry will be highlighted by George Ahlschwede, ASPC National Coordinator of the Blueprint for Expansion stage 11, Texas A&M University.

Doug Hogue, Animal Science Department, Cornell University, will discuss production schedules designed to maximize reproductive efficiency for sheep producers. Other scheduled speakers include: Tom Wickersham, extension sheep specialist Iowa State University, discussing the economics of raising sheep; Fred Straph, president of Henry W. Straph, Inc., a Baltimore lamb packing plant, who will discuss ideal lamb qualities for the packer.

N.Y. produce firm eligible to operate again

NEW YORK, N.Y. — D'Agostino Produce of Syracuse, N.Y. has become eligible to again operate in the produce industry. This determination was made by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Agricultural Marketing Service, which administers the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act.

Charles Brader, an AMS official, said that the firm was reinstated under PACA because it paid two reparation awards issued against it during May and July of 1981. The owner, Dominic D'Agostino and Giuseppe D'Agostino may also now be employed by PACA licensees without bond.

Under PACA, all interstate traders in fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables must be licensed by USDA. USDA is authorized to suspend or revoke a trader's license for violating the act.

Boar sale attracts distant buyers, sets record

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

UNIVERSITY PARK — Pennsylvania's 4th Performance Tested Boar Sale broke previous records in two capacities Wednesday night when it packed in buyers from six states and Canada and sold boars for an average of $541 30

According to Reno Thomas, Brooks End Farm and breeder of the top indexing pen in the 1981 Boar Test, this new average and buyer turnout is proof of the effectiveness of the swine testing programs.

"We are now attracting the attention of hog producers all over the eastern United States Before we had to go out of state to get test hogs," Thomas said.

Five years ago that's what Thomas had to do when he went to Ireland, purchased hogs, and introduced "new blood" to Americans.

This year's top pen is a "result of new blood lines from Ireland," Thomas said He bred the high-indexing and the high-selling boar

Speaking out in favor of the testing program is State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell who said, "Performance testing is an excellent way to turn genetic improvement into higher profits"

Thomas gives more support for the program by adding, "Testing gives the consumer better quality meat for less dollars — everybody profits."

And indeed everybody did profit at this sale Held at the Meat Animal Evaluation Center in State College, the sale featured one Berkshire, 13 Duroc, four Hampshire, four Landrace, five Spotted and 23 Yorkshire boars, all on a controlled program

Thomas' top indexing pen had an average daily gain of 2 17 pounds per day, 2.32 pounds of feed to produce a pound of gain and took 153 days to reach 230 pounds The pen, sired by RTB9 Danny 194-9, averaged 64 inches of fat, 4.90 square inch loin eyes, 64.4 percent lean cuts and a final average index of 143

High indexer from the top pen was RTBl Danny 28-9 who had an average daily gain of 2 21 pounds, 149 days to 230 pounds, backfat of 62 inches 64 9 percent lean cuts and final index of 148 Harold Eby of Hagerstown, Md purchased the animal for $900

High seller, also owned by Thomas and in the top pen, was 28-ll who had an average daily gain of 2 22, 148 days to 230 pounds, backfat of .68 inches, and a final index of 144 The high seller went for $1500 to Shur-Gain Farm of Maple, Ontario, Canada

The high indexing Duroc pen, the second highest pen over all breeds was owned by Calvin H Lazarus and Sons of Busy Acres Farms, Whitehall, Centre County The pen averaged a final index of 126.The four boars were sired by CHLS Riggin Clout l

Third high indexing pen belonged to Grandview Farms of Wellersburg, Somerset County, who consigned the top Landrace pen The boars, sired by LNR Bigfoot 28-5 had an average daily gain of 2 16 pounds and final index of 126

Second individual high selling boar was a Landrace owned and bred by David Korns of Grandview Farms This boar had a final index of 148, had a daily gain of 2 14 pounds a day and took 158 days to reach 230 pounds This boar was purchased by Brooks End Farm for $925

The overall sale average was up from last year — the average was $537 50 and there were two less boars — last year 48 sold

Although the record for the highest selling performance tested boar still remains to a Yorkshire boar which sold for $1600 in 1978, some of the breed averages were up from last year·

Eleven Duroc boars sold for an average of $531 81 (last year 12 Durocs averaged $508 33); five Landrace boars averaged $600 (last year 5 Landraces averaged $375; three Hampshires averaged $558 33 (last year 2 Hampshires averaged $537.50; 22 Yorkshires averaged $580 68 (last year 24 Yorkshires averaged $619 79; and four Spotted boars averaged $287 50 (last year 2 averaged $437 50)

The 46 sold for over $24,000

Reno Thomas from Brooks End Farm, Beavertown, shows a plaque he received for having the high-indexing boar at the 4th annual Pennsylvania Performance Tested Boar Sale, Wednesday night. Behind him is Bob Kimble, head of the meat animal evaluation center.

Fungus creeps into state alfalfa fields

there and we don't know how long we've had the disease," Leath said.

Verticillium wilt, which resembles fusarium wilt and anthracnose, interferes with water movement throughout the plant said Leath. The plant leaflets wither and turn brown followed by stem dehydration. Eventually the fungus invades the crown and kills the plant.

The recent discoveries showed up in 1978 seedings. He explained the disease worsens in the second and third year of the stand.

"Farmers will probably take the field out in three years rather than five or six," Leath said.

'We didn't expect to find it because we're too far south."

Leath explained the fungus, native to Europe, is usually found in cooler climates and was probably brought to this country in seed.

The disease was first discovered in the U.S. in 1977. Idaho, Washington and Oregon, seed producing states, were the first to report alfalfa damage. Wisconsin and New York crops were affected last year.

Since the outbreak in the western states, plant breeders have been working on resistant varieties.

"About every commercial company we've got has something coming," he said.

Although the same fungus exists now in both Europe and the U.S., the big difference, said Leath, is the stage of the disease.

In Europe the fungus produces spores on the outside of alfalfa on stems and can be easily carried in the wind or rain producing a contagious situation.

"To date in the U.S. we have not observed that happening," Leath explained.

Instead, the present stage of the disease found within the stem and roots in the state crops would move slowly or creep along within a field.

Meanwhile, the summer is almost over and most of the crop has either been baled or ensiled. But John Baylor, extension forage agronomist explained that feeding the crop will not be a problem.

"There is very little evidence that diseases in general on forage, would harm animals consuming it," said Baylor.

"The economical loss," he said, "is in the field."

The most effective control measure, said Leath, is to get resistant varieties out as fast as possible.

Because hay moves at the state and national level, quarantine would not be feasible.

The USDA will, however, recommend machinery sanitation, a similar control measure for anthracnose.

USDA representatives are expected to survey the northern part of the state next week, said Leath.

"We're not sure what we're going to have yet but it looks like we're ahead of it.

Verticillium wilt will interfere with water movement in a healthy alfalfa plant, left, and cause withering and eventually death as depicted by infected plant, right.

Lehigh Valley Farms holds first annual meeting

ALLENTOWN — Atlantic Processing, Inc., a federation of dairy cooperatives that trades under the name of Lehigh Valley Farms, held its first annual meeting last Tuesday here at the Lehigh Country Club

Officials of the organization reported sales of $122 million and a net margin of $907,000 for the first six months of the current fiscal year

Chairman Alpheus L. Ruth, a Berks County dairyman, told the group that, in striking contrast to the national milk marketing conditions, API is not suffering from a milk glut. In fact, he said, the co-op "needs a lot more milk to keep the plants humming."

He noted API is adding considerable Class I fluid milk sales. "In the months ahead, API needs 90 to 100 million pounds of milk each month. Depending on the month we're talking about, that's 10 to 25 million pounds more than the members of the federation are committed for."

Ruth pointed out Lehigh Valley Farms is one of the members of API, accounting for about 60 percent of the federation's annual needs. He reported LVF is "on an aggressive drive to attract several hundred new members" and that the co-op leaders "recognize the opportunity to play an even bigger role in the federation by providing more milk."

Part of the selling message is that Atlantic guarantees a continuing market for the farmers milk. Another is that API is making money — money they pass on to the bargaining cooperatives who ship milk to API in the form of patronage dividends.

Ruth added individual farmers are getting a distribution of cash in amounts averaging $200. "These bonuses are welcome to farmers, especially in these times of galloping inflation," he said, citing labor costs, equipment costs, and "horrendous interest charges."

The Berks dairyman stated dairy farmers whose milk comes to API "are in a relatively happy position. They are in a marketing chain that is making money, and they are sharing in the proceeds."

He lauded belonging to an organization like API because it gives bargaining co-ops the opportunity to grow, permitting them to prosper when there are wide-sweeping changes in government attitudes.

"The lower parity levels and the anticipated cutbacks in purchases by the CCC can be summed up this way," said Ruth. 'The government is saying 'There will more milk If you want to make even more — then you sell it Don't rely on Uncle Sam Find your own markets' We have to be responsive to that attitude"

Ruth urged farm organizations to spend less time on internal affairs and spend more time developing markets and satisfying consumers.

In summing up the current status of API and Lehigh Valley Farms, Ruth stated, "We have come a long way from the dark years and we believe we are in a position to make progress."

President Robert P. Barry predicted continued profits for the balance of the year, but at a slower rate in the third quarter. He described the federation's role as "filling the void left by proprietary dealers who have abandoned milk marketing because of a lack of commitment to the dairy industry. Because of stockholder pressure for profits, many dairy companies have been reluctant to make the capital expenditures needed for growth. API is willing to make the investment that will double or triple our business."

Barry and staff reported on API's marketing program in support of LITE, a lowfat milk. He disclosed the beginning distribution of LactAid, a specially digestible milk for people who are lactose-intolerant and have difficulty digesting milk. This ultra-pasteurized product will have an extended shelf life of 35 days.

The federation's ice cream operations were reviewed. According to Barry, the recently-introduced Lehigh Valley Farms all-natural ice cream has met with favorable consumer response in Pennsylvania and New Jersey markets.

In New York City, API acquired the production and marketing rights to the century-old Louis Sherry ice cream brand.

MDA receives permit for Mesurol as repellent on grapes

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — David Shriver, chief of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Pesticide Applicators Law Section, has announced EPA has granted Maryland an emergency exemption for use of "Mesurol" 75%WP on grapes to repel birds.

He points out that, under terms of the EPA permit, a maximum of three applications may be made per acre and that a one-day preharvest interval must be observed. The special exemption will expire on November 30, 1981, and therefore, is good only for the 1981 Maryland grape growing season.

The emergency use exemption from labeling comes under provisions of Section 18 of FIFRA, the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act, which is the law governing the use of pesticides in the nation.

According to the request for the special exemption, as filed by MDA in cooperation with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, some 350 acres of grapes in Maryland this year may need such treatment.

Grape culture, both for wine making and for table grape sales, is an expanding business in Maryland. Birds have proven to be a major threat to the carefully nurtured and expensive crop.

"Mesurol" currently is used as a bird repellent in other states for such crops as cherries, blueberries and grapes. In the past it has been used to repel birds on blueberry and grape crops in Maryland.

The material is not designed to kill birds or injure them. Its effect is to make the grapes unattractive to birds from a taste standpoint.

Birds that are proving to be troublesome in Maryland vineyards are sparrows, catbirds, doves, starlings, robins, finches, and orioles.

Such birds, when high population levels occur in an area of grape culture, can cause up to a one-third loss of the grape crop.

Youths attend PAFC scholar conference

SHIPPENSBURG — From July 12 through the 15, the regional conference of PAFC scholars was held at Shippensburg State College.

The main purpose of this annual conference is to promote cooperatives among youth - by teaching the student participants to understand the objectives and functions of cooperatives. Secondarily, students are selected to attend the National Institute of Cooperative Education which, this year, will be held in Colorado.

In attendance at this regional institute were approximately 160 students from New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware and Pennsylvania. The students who participated were selected to attend as representatives of their districts having been judged by their local chapters on their knowledge of the business enterprise system, the cooperative concept and their various activities, in school and community life.

From the Chester-Delaware Council, 8 students and 2 alternates were selected. Of that initial group, 6 scholars attended including Eileen Fairbairn, West Chester; Terry King, Nottingham; Leslie Schofield, Pottstown; Valerie Weaver and Bill Wylie, Nottingham; and Nancy Yarnall, Oxford. Rich Pelkofsky, a field representative with the West Chester branch of Southeast Farm Credit Service, was chaperon for the three-day conference.

From the Bucks-Montgomery Council, Dean Marks, Hereford, John McGann, Maple Glen, Shannon McLaughlin, Oaks, and Tom Reynolds, of Churchville, attended.

Throughout a series of meetings and activities, the students were being evaluated by Resource Leaders, the Institute staff, and other scholars on their leadership qualities and their participation in the conference. Eight student/scholars from Pennsylvania were chosen - four by the above mentioned persons and four by the Interstate Milk Producers Coop. Nancy Yarnall, a representative of the Chester-Delaware Council, who is very involved in 4-H, FFA & Grange activities and is this year's Chester Co. Dairy Queen Alternate, was selected by Interstate to attend the N.I.C.E. Conference in Colorado. Eileen Fairbairn, also of the Chester-Delaware Council, is an alternate. Eileen won first prize in the poster contest with a poster whose name theme and artwork depicted the cooperative spirit. First prize was awarded to another delegation member, Terry King, who was presented the top place finish in the talent show with his guitar/vocal rendition of "Sunshine" by John Denver.

Buses transported people to and from research and conservation tours.

Research highlights included discussions by several agricultural engineers, horticulturalists and management specialists.

The conservation tour included several methods of soil and water conservation, and visitors got a chance to tour the experimental woodland plot which depicts the various stages of forest development.

Each day there were field demonstrations on hay-making, corn-chopping, silo-bagging, and mowing.

Several Pennsylvania legislators visited, Wednesday, for a tour of the facilities and a luncheon with Agricultural Secretary Penrose Hallowell, on hand to distribute various awards and certificates of recognition.

The highlight of Thursday, the final day, was the Safety Tractor Driving Contest for 4-H and FFA members. Look for results in next week's issue of Lancaster Farming.

Events for women included microwave cooking, the 2nd Annual Pennsylvania Recipe Contest and safety demonstrations. The winning recipes from the Recipe Contest will also be available in next week's issue.

Although not publicized as a livestock event, there were several species of livestock on hand. In the Penn State dairy and livestock tent, visitors got a chance to see some Chianana, beef cattle, a horse and foal, young goats, chickens and an incubator which provided entertainment for the children.

The 4-H kept busy with such events as rocketry, a leader dog puppy graduation, a therapeutic riding demonstration with Lipizzaner horses and several individual demonstrations included clowning, snakes and plants

By late afternoon Thursday, the many visitors headed back to farms and homes a little tired but a lot enlightened.

Berks completes resource inventory

LEESPORT — The Berks County natural resource inventory has been completed, reports Joe Filanowski of the Soil Conservation Service.

To gather the necessary data, Soil Conservation Service personnel traveled to more than 300 sites within the county. Each site was 107 acres in size and had three points which had to be evaluated. At these points technicians recorded such things as the land cover, the degree of erosion and the conservation treatment needs.

Now that the field work has been completed, the data will be processed in order to provide guidelines for the long range planning of a soil and water resources. These guidelines will then be made available to the people who are making decisions which involve our natural resources.

Questions concerning the natural resource inventory should be directed to the Berks County Soil Conservation Service office located at the county agricultural center.

Lebanon 4-H equestrians compete

LEBANON — Lebanon County 4-H equestrians competed in their county roundup recently during the Lebanon Area Fair.

One of the skillful winners at this year's show was Sharon Henney, 16, of R1 Myerstown

Astride her Anglo-Arab gelding, 'Royal Red', Henney was a team member of the first place pleasure pairs duo. Her partner in the event was Jeanne Pierce.

The daughter of Robert and Ruth Henney, Sharon has been competing in 4-H riding shows for the past two years. She has chosen to ride hunt seat rather than western in the events. Her efforts were recognized by the judge during the roundup as Sharon was awarded third place in both the Senior Hunter Equitation class and the Hunter Horse under 14.2 hands class.

The enthusiastic horsewoman also was a member of the second place county team, consisting of Jeanne Pierce, Jackie Brown, and Sharon.

Wood is Pa. ASC chairman

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John Block has appointed Jesse Wood of Nottingham as chairman of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. Mendel suspended

NEW YORK, N.Y. — J. Roger Barber, commissioner of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, permanently revoked the domestic animal health permit of Albert Mendel & Sons, Inc., a cattle dealer from Patterson, N.Y., on July 31.

In September, 1979, the commissioner had suspended the Mendel permit for two years and assessed a $50,000 civil penalty because the dealer had engaged in various fraudulent practices, including submission of falsely identified blood samples for official testing.

In the determination signed July 30, the commissioner found that Mendel had used I.R Meyers & Sons, Greenfield, Mass., as an out-of-state front from which to continue cattle dealing in New York during the period the Mendel permit was suspended.

The state agency began the revocation proceeding on July 16, 1980, and designated an independent hearing officer, Robert J. McKennan, to preside. The hearing was held in 17 sessions from August, 1980, to April, 1981, and the hearing record consisted of more than 2,000 pages and 100 exhibits.

The hearing officer's report, recommending permanent revocation, was filed on June 8. Last August, the agency obtained a restraining order of the New York State Supreme Court barring Mendel from acting as a cattle dealer and that order will remain in effect marketing activities and are financially strong."

"Functions which can best be handled at the corporate level will be handled in Louisville, and matters best handled on a local level will be dealt with in Baltimore," noted MCMP general manager Ralph Strock.

Dairymen, Inc., follows the policy of centralized direction, but decentralized operations within each division. Thus, MCMP will continue to maintain its own division board of directors and management team.

In the final moments before the last two or three ballots were collected from the raptly attentive audience, manager Strock again outlined the months of study that had brought the cooperative to this history-making meeting.

He said the cooperative had looked in several directions, seeking a partnership where they would be best equipped for the changing demands of the dairy industry. Strock predicted milk volume handling by farmer-owned cooperatives will continue to increase; buyers will become larger nationwide or regional customers, requiring large volume suppliers; and successful suppliers will be those with the foresight to increase their scale of operations to new market needs.

The manager also predicted that, following this pattern of ever-larger marketing organizations, in the future the nation's supply of milk is likely to be handled by perhaps 13 to 15 large, regional cooperatives.

"Maryland Cooperative is an organization that believes like we do," Said P.L. Robinson, president of Dairymen, Inc. "The cooperative's biggest responsibility is to guarantee established markets for members."

Expanding on that theme was Ben F. Morgan, Jr., Dairymen's chief executive officer.

"Our purpose is to serve the dairy farmer in the marketplace and give some meaningful influence," said Morgan. "Dairy farmers should make the rules, not by playing 'catch-up'."

During a pre-ballot tabulation question-answer session, Morgan fielded one query on how milk would continue to be handled within the Baltimore market area.

He indicated that if bottling plants in the area would come up for sale, Dairymen would evaluate their possible acquisition in a "strictly businesslike way." If the operation of such facilities would be deemed profitable, the cooperative would then consider such purchases.

Flav-O-Rich, the processing-sales arm of Dairymen, Inc., is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the members, operating 20 bottling plants. Last year, Flav-O-Rich earned $5.6 million on operations, and is projected this year to $6 million. Management of Dairymen, Inc. speculates someday the processing business may completely fund the operating costs of running the large cooperative.

According to James W. McDowell, Jr., vice president of operations for Dairymen, roughly 97 cents of every dollar of milk handled through the cooperative returns to producers. That translates, he says, to about 40 cents per hunderedweight in operating costs.

One as yet unsettled issue , the method of raising milk promotion funds, emerged during the member question-answer period preceeding the vote counting. Maryland Cooperative members have been contributing 13 cents per hundredweight, but funds were subject to "ask-out" by those not wishing to support the Federal Order 4 promotion program.

For the past two years, Dairyman, Inc, has operated their own cooperative promotion program, based on board philosophy and policy aimed at long-term goals of marketing milk.

"We develop a game plan, as to our objectives, and put our dollars there," explained McDowell.

That funding amounted to a mandatory 8.1 cents per hundredweight, with no "ask-outs" permitted.

McDowell assured MCMP producers the workability of the Order 4 program will be carefully analyzed and a decision made only after intense study.

With the approval of MCMP members to merge, Dairymen, Inc., now encompasses 8,000 farmer-members operating in 17 states.

Grange sets legislative priorities

HARRISBURG — Charles E. Wismer, Jr., Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, has announced his organization's legislative priorities for the upcoming legislative session.

"First on our agenda for September session, is passage of House Bill 1429, known as the 'Noxious Weed Bill," the Grange leader said. "A number of agricultural groups have worked together for many months to prepare this piece of legislation. House Bill 1429 will declare the troublesome multiflora rose a noxious weed and also create a channel for quick designation of noxious weeds through the Department of Agriculture instead of through a lengthy legislative process."

A second priority, Wismer said, is exempting manure structures on farms from unfair real estate taxes through Senate Bill 919 and 920, currently in the Senate Local Government Committee.

"By the nature of his business, the farmer has always carried the burden on real estate taxes," he said. "Exemption for manure structures is one way to give him some relief."

Wismer says his organization will make a concentrated effort to get these bills passed through the legislature when it reconvenes in September.

Leyland introduces new tractor line

LANCASHIRE, ENGLAND — New Leyland farm tractors feature a super comfort cab, a new Golden Harvest color scheme, a new model identity and extensive mechanical improvements.

The tractor hydraulics are boosted, the transmission housing and hydraulic components strengthened and new oil-immersed disc brakes and multi-speed PTO have been incorporated.

Their introduction co-incides with the announcement of a 'New Deal' package comprising numerous dealer and farmer customer benefits. The 'New Deal' package follows a complete revision of Leyland farm tractor marketing in the U.S.A.

The new Leyland range comprises the following models:

Leyland 602, 62hp, two-wheel drive, replaces Leyland 262; Leyland 604, 62hp, four-wheel drive, replaces Leyland 462; Leyland 702, 72hp, two-wheel drive, replaces Leyland 272; Leyland 704, 72hp, four-wheel drive, replaces Leyland 472; Leyland 802, 82hp, two-wheel drive, replaces Leyland 282; Leyland 804, 82hp, four-wheel drive, replaces Leyland 482.

Proven features of the Leyland tractor such as the four-cylinder 4/98 diesel engine with an excellent reliability and high performance reputation and the unique Leyland 'Synchro' gearbox giving easy on-the-move changes and quick shuttle action for loader work are retained in the models

New cab

The Leyland range is available in cabbed or cabless form. The new Explorer cab sets a very high standard of driver comfort.

It has two wide opening doors and a near flat floor for easy entry and exit and a comprehensively equipped console with auto-type finger tip stalk controls for horn, headlamps, dip/main beam selection, wipers/washers and direction indicators

New hydraulics

The new Leyland tractors now have 'Live' hydraulics with the hydraulic pump connected directly to the engine crank-shaft. Maximum oil flow rate has been more than doubled from eight gallons/minute to eighteen gallons/minute.

A new diverter valve which will reduce oil flow to 10.7 gallons/minute has also been incorporated. The Leyland tractors also have a new range of single-acting and double-acting remote valves. The double-acting type can be converted to single acting, a float function is also available.

New three-point linkage

The three-point lift linkage has been revised with stronger lift rods, a strengthened cross-shaft housing and new splined ends on the cross-shaft.

The rear transmission casing is now manufactured in a higher grade metal and oil sealing has been improved.

The leveling lever for the lift linkage is now in the cab.

New PTO

The new Leyland multi-speed power-take-off system provides a choice of three PTO operating speeds including one with economy benefits. The system uses a combination of a high and a low range gearbox and a choice of 6 or 21 spline PTO shafts.

For a PTO speed of 1,000rpm, high range is engaged, the 21spline shaft fitted and the engine driven at 1,825rpm.

For a PTO speed of 540rpm, low range is engaged, the 6 spline shaft fitted and the engine driven at 1,815rpm.

For maximum economy when using low power requirement implements, a PTO speed of 540rpm is available at an engine speed of only 985rpm with high range engaged and the 6 spline shaft fitted.

Better brakes

New hydraulically operated and oil-immersed disc brakes are fitted to the new Leyland tractors and replace the former dry type disc brakes. The new brake system gives powerful but progressive braking and has a longer working life, with maintenance reduced to a minimum.

The new brakes comprise a four-plate system on the 602 and 702 and a six-plate version on the 604, 704, 802 and 804.

The former three pedal mechanical braking arrangement has been replaced on the new models by two pedals and hydraulic function. A self-equalising balance valve is incorporated to provide safe straight-line braking.

? That's A ? Good Question

I would like to buy peaches directly from a fruit grower for a church group. Please, tell me the names and telephone numbers of several growers who raise Sun High and Triogem peaches.

I also would like to know the location and dates of good farmers' markets.

And where is the resturant called "Good and Plenty" located?

Glen C. Simkin

Chemung, New York

Mr. Simkin: There are a number of farm markets located in the northern counties of Pennsylvania, according to Barbara Alman,a spokesperson for the Pennsylvania Bureau of Markets. In the counties of Potter and Susquehanna, the farmers' markets include: Aucott's Pick your Own, R2, Niles Hill Road, Coudersport, PA 16915, Phone: 814/274-7265; Bohlayer's Orchard, David Loomis, R1, Troy PA 16947, Phone: 717/297-2480; Maple Hill Market, Everett Stone R1, Thompson, PA 18465, Phone 717/727-2200.

Two fruit farmers who grow both the Triogem and Sun High peaches are: Whispering Springs Farm R1, Mt. Pleasant Mills, PA 17853 Phone. 717/539-4351 and Dries Orchard, R3, Sunbury, PA 17801 Phone: 717/286-6723.

Two Adams County growers who can furnish you with the types of peaches you desire are Bear Mountain Orchards, John K. Lott R1, Aspers, PA 17304, Phone 717/677-8713 and Boyer Nursery and Orchards, Inc., Bill Lower, R2 Biglerville, PA 17307, Phone 717/677-8558.

If additional growers are needed the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture publishes a pamphlet entitled, "Pennsylvania Produce Buyers Guide" which lists various types of fruits, vegetables, and market places. You can obtain one of these pamphlets by writing to the Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street Harrisburg, PA 17101, Phone: 717/787-5107.

If other farm market information is desired you can get in touch with the Bureau of Markets in Pennsylvania at 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17101, Phone: 717/787-4210 and they will be happy to give you any information you need. There is also a bureau of markets in New York which may be reached by calling 518/457-2713.

Researchers study animal welfare

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Scientists will look for new ways to keep farm animals healthy, contented and highly productive to produce the nation's meat, milk and eggs in research funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Terry B. Kinney, acting administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, said today a $380,000 research project will seek to discover whether stress is affecting the production of poultry, veal calves and swine under modern farming practices; and if so, how to deal with it.

"Both farmers and the public have an interest in sound animal management," Kinney said. "For the farmer, good animal management means better, more economical production and higher net returns. For the public, it means more plentiful and more economical food supplies."

Kinney said the new research will be conducted at the USDA agency's Roman L. Hruska Meat Animal Research Center in Clay Center, Neb., and at eight universities.

"We are looking for ways to determine whether stress exists under confinement conditions," he said. "If stress is found as a result of the experiments, then attempts will be made to alleviate the stress through housing and management procedures.

"Animals must receive adequate nutrition, proper housing and veterinary care and be properly selected genetically to be productive," Kinney continued.

"Ongoing scientific information about farm animal care is needed as agriculture adopts new practices. What we learn from the research will help farmers with their animal management."

Kinney, whose agency will coordinate the project, said the effects of stress on the behavior of farm animals can lead to weight loss, reduction in growth rate and susceptibility to disease.

Institutions doing the research will be Cornell University, University of Georgia, University of Illinois, University of Minnesota, Texas A&M University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Washington State University and University of Wisconsin.

Robert R. Oltjen, director of the Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, will coordinate the studies.

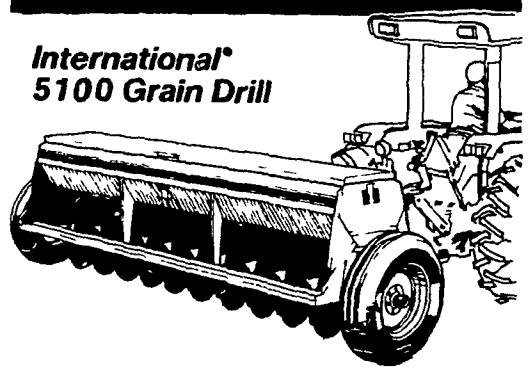
Better than ever seeding performance



International® 5100 Grain Drill

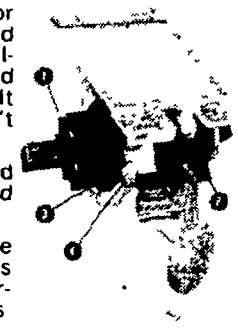
The secret is in the Seed Cup and the Depth Control Wheels

1. Fluted roll, molded of oxide coated sintered metal, is tops for precision, smoothness and resistance to corrosion It's well-supported at both ends, and precisely aligned for accuracy It turns extra easy, and won't freeze up during idle periods

2 Shut-off block of sintered metal, is also precision-molded for accuracy

3 Fluted washer fits over the roll and mates closely with it It's cadmiumplated to prevent corrosion, keep it like new for years

4 Insert acts as a positive bearing surface to surround and support the fluted washer, reduce wear



Depth Control and press wheels aid in faster seed germination

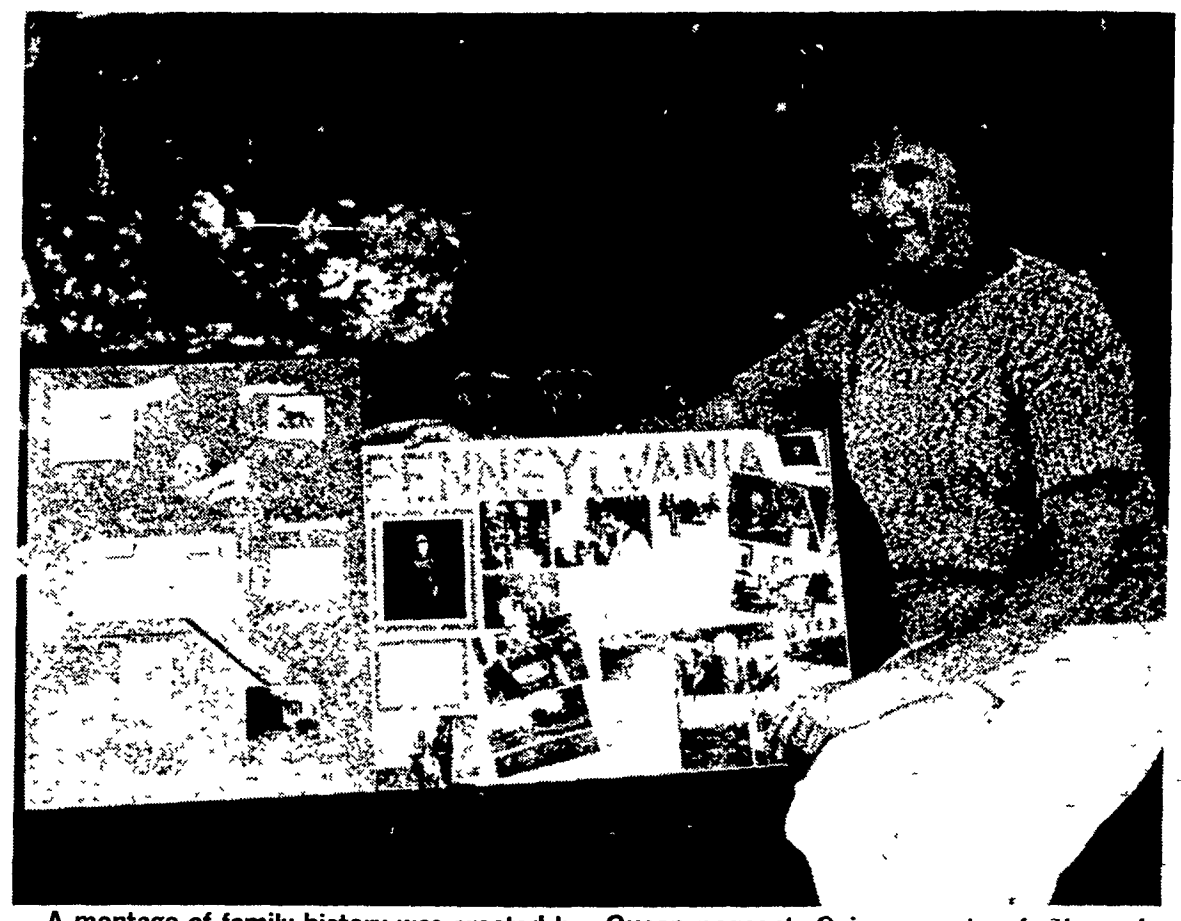
International title goes to local Flying Farmer Queen



A montage of family history was created by Nancy Marstellar for use in her presentation to the judges of the International Flying Farmer Queen pageant. Going one step further, she included a poster depicting the Keystone state.

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

On the evening of July 29, Wilbur Marstellar received a telephone call from Calgary, Alberta province, Canada.

On the line was a representative of the judges of the International Flying Farmer queen competition, being held in Calgary as part of the organization's 36th annual convention.

Nancy Marstellar, Wilbur's talented wife and the Pennsylvania Flying Farmers' queen, would be crowned the international queen the next night. Could he come?

In spite of the tip-off by the judges, the New Park R1 grain and livestock farmer was unable to make the reservations to fly two thousand miles to the coronation.

"But he sent me red roses," fondly remembers Nancy, surprised for the second time that memorable night when she was told that her family back home already had heard the stunning news.

Nancy won her title over 31 other contestants from across North America. As the new reigning lady of the International Flying Farmers Association, she'll be a spokesman for the family-oriented programs of rural enthusiasts, with several thousand members from Canada, Mexico and the United States.

"It looks like we're going to have a 'Hi' and 'Goodbye' year," says the new queen, after reviewing a jammed schedule lined up for her over the next several months.

Beginning with a "fly-in" to Pittsburgh and an appearance at Ag Progress Days this past week, Nancy is scheduled to promote the Flying Farmers during at least 16 state conventions.

The Delmarva meeting, scheduled at Ocean City, Maryland, in September, will be the first on the circuit. Later, her travels, will take the flying farm wife from Saskatachewan, Canada, to Mexico, from a workshop at Nashville, Tennessee to Pennsylvania's own convention at Bird-in-Hand, and possibly even to an appearance at the Tri-State session held by the Flying Farmer members of Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The Marstellars have been members of the Flying Farmers organization for nearly five years, although Wilbur began piloting a private plane in 1953. A Piper Cherokee 160 is hangared in one of the Marstellar Brothers' farm sheds, adjacent to the trimmed-grass landing strip bordering tall, lush, ripening corn fields

"We don't fly as much as we'd like," admits Nancy. Although she's not a licensed private pilot, Nancy has earned "land it" status. "Land it" qualifiers take a course that includes a required number of hours of air and ground school time, radio and map studies, emergency landing procedure knowledge and time at the controls.

"I'd like to continue studying to get my own license," Nancy hopes, "But not this year" Although she has spent many hours learning basics of flying under Wilbur's instruction, only air time spent under a qualified, licensed instructor counts toward passing the state's private pilot exams.

Nancy is quick to emphasize that the Flying Farmers is a family organization, with programs geared to all ages and special encouragement lent to the numerous youth members taking up flying. Both the Marstellar children, Darren, who's 10, and 8-year-old Laura, share their parents' love of travel in the family's Cherokee and first became airborne when they were mere weeks old.

Most meetings of the chapters are held as "fly-ins," and are a mixture of education and fellowship, usually hosted by member families and often featuring flown-in covered dish dinners. If the weather is favorable, most members arrive by air; but if even a chance of a storm threatens, these safety-first farm fliers are quick to trade the rudder for a ground-level steering-wheeled vehicle.

About 80 members flew to York County for a recent meeting hosted at the Marstellar's farm, and during another session this spring the group toured the helicopter landing and weather facilities at Indiantown Gap military base.

Named the Pennsylvania Flying Farmer Queen at the March convention in Reading, Nancy has already represented the Keystone agriculture pilots at both the New York state and South Carolina confabs.

As part of the week-long judging for the international crown, each contestant was required to share something of her life and background by speaking to the judging group about a family poster she had designed. Nancy also added a visual of Pennsylvania for further information on her heritage.

Nancy especially remembers one "breakfast" held during the judging sessions. It began at 7 a.m., and continued on through two o'clock in the afternoon. Each of the 32 state or regional queens was given five minutes to share with the group information about themselves and their farm families.

Another requirement was that each contestant bring along some small gift to share with the other entrants. Nancy chose a "love light," a handcrafted pottery candle holder, about four inches high and designed to hold a small votive candle. Around the top of the holder are many small holes, allowing the candle's glow to send tiny shafts of light out through the pottery.

Since much of the judging emphasis was on the contestant's accomplishments and talents, Nancy's musical background and numerous community activities compiled an impressive resume.

A Lebanon Valley college graduate, with a B.S. degree in music, majoring in voice and piano, Nancy also earned her elementary teaching certificate. For 11 years, she taught music in two of Southeastern School District's elementary schools.

Now an elementary and music substitute for the district, she says that's "almost a full-time job," for which she'll likely be less available during the upcoming school session.

Nancy also sees education from the parent point of view, serving as president of the Fawn Area Elementary parent-teacher organization. Her enthusiasm overflows into the Music Boosters club and she's served as a director for the Southern Community Concert organization.

The bulk of Nancy's abundant musical abilities goes to serve Centre Presbyterian Church, just a few hundred yards from the front door of the gracious farm home.

An accomplished player of the organ, piano and guitar, Nancy directs Centre's childrens' choir of about 18 members and a 20-voice youth choir, and sings with the adult choir as well. She heads the church's annual Bible School and leads a weekly Sunday School hymn sing.

As do many teachers, Nancy continues studying in her field of education.

"I still take lessons on the guitar, and wish I'd learned how to play that a lot sooner," she reflects. "It's much easier to carry a guitar from classroom to classroom than it is to move a piano."

While Nancy's favorite age group to work with in teaching is children, she prefers not to give private music instruction to her own two youngsers. Instead, Darren and Laura take their lessons elsewhere.

"I think you tend to expect too much from your own children, and become impatient with them too easily," she philosophizes.

With family roots deep in the rich heritage of southern York County, Nancy grew up just a

The family that plays together...Margaret has passed on her love and talent for music to Laura and Darren, joining their mother in an informal jam session.

"It gets washed a lot more often than the family car," quips Nancy of the spotless white-trimmed-in-red Pipe Cherokee that carries these Flying Farmers over the Pennsylvania farmlands. Wilbur and Nancy took both Darren and Laura on their first flights when the youngsters were just weeks old.

quarter-mile away from the Marstellar farmstead. Her parents operated a poultry farm, plus raising a number of "truck" crops.

Reigning over an agriculture organization is not a new experience to the poised, well-spoken Nancy.

In 1956, she was selected the Pennsylvania Turkey Queen, the York County Poultry Queen and the state's poultry princess.

Three years later, Nancy won the first-runner-up honors in the Miss York County competition. And in 1967, she was named one of the Outstanding Young Women of America, after being nominated for that selection by the Fawn Grove Grange.

After marrying Wilbur a dozen years ago, Nancy renewed her active involvement in farming. The four brothers in the Marstellar Brothers operation crop over 600 acres in potatoes, corn, small grains and soybeans, along with feeding out annually several hundred head each of beef and hogs.

During the peak of potato harvest, Nancy is shedding her crown and banner for the faded denims and comfortable shirt uniform of the crew riding the harvester. While only a few acres are being dug each day for the local chipping processors, harvest will speed up in a few weeks for the bulk of the later potatoes that will be mostly retailed at the farm.

"I just love plants," says Nancy of the favorite hobby that fills her home and yard with lush greenery. Numerous hanging baskets sway in the shade of a giant tree looming beside the house, and hang from the porch and windowtrames. Some of Nancy's plants have grown so large that a neighbor with more spacious plant accomodations tends them over the the winter months.

Those plants, along with Nancy's other hobbies like tennis, downhill skiing and various crafts, may get scant attention for the next year, with the demands of the Flying Farmer queen's itinerary.

"I'm not getting anything done here at home," she chuckles. "The correspondence alone is overwhelming."

Along with the trappings of the position, the crown, trophy, queen's pin and a robe that travels from winner to winner, Nancy received a $200 cash gift from the Teledyne Corporation toward the numerous expenses of travel and postage.

So, if during the next year you see a red-trimmed white Cherokee soaring over the fields and off into the distance blue yonder, wave. It could be Nancy Marstellar, queen of the North American agriculture skies, on her way to spread the message of the International Flying Farmers.

Hort Show coming Sept. 12-13

UNIVERSITY PARK — Selecting trees, flowers, and shrubs for the home can be fun and educational. A visit to the 68th annual Horticulture Show at the Pennsylvania State University could provide some suggestions. The event will be held September 12 and 13 in the flower gardens along University Drive.

Two circus tents will display ideas and demonstrations ranging from landscape designs to flower arrangements. Tips for vegetable gardening and suggestions for small fruit culture will also be included.

Hours for the Horticulture Show will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday, September 12, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, September 13. Admission is free.

Patti L. Schurr from Coraopolis will demonstrate ways to incorporate shrubs and trees into a poorly drained yard. Sometimes damp areas occur and create problems, Schurr says. She will show the use of dwarf cranberry trees, winterberry holly, and red stem dogwood for moist conditions.

Paul Roberts from Chalfront and Jeff Jabco from Bellefonte are co-chairmen for 1981. The show is sponsored by the Penn State Horticulture Club in conjunction with the Department of Horticulture and the College of Agriculture. Ernest Bergman and Roland Daniels are faculty co-advisors.

A wide variety of foliage plants will be available for purchase in the sales area. Mushrooms, apple cider, and honey will also be for sale. Profits will be used to cover expenses for the show and provide scholarships and educational field trips for members of the Horticulture Club.

QUESTION — I would like a recipe for Oatmeal Whoppie Pies. Could anyone help?

S. Haldeman, New Holland

ANSWERS — In answer to a request for recipes using buttermilk, Mrs. Anna Byler of Belleville has graciously supplied us with those at the end of the recipe section.

The following is in response to a request placed in Cook's Question Corner recently for recipes using buttermilk.

Put dry ingredients in bowl, except soda which should be added to milk just before adding the milk to the dry ingredients. Last, add butter and flavorings. Mix well. The dough should be fairly thick. Put in pans and spread even with spatula.

Bake in 350 degree oven until done, about 60 minutes. Remove from pans and cool. Cut in strips and rub through 1/4 inch hardware cloth. Dry the crumbs in a warm oven. Delicious for breakfast with milk and fresh or canned fruit.

Anna Byler, Belleville

Thaw food safely

MEDIA — When your freezer fails, the first foods to become dangerous are meats, vegetables and casseroles These foods are the ones most likely to cause illness after an accidential thawing

Safety of a food depends on its temperature and length of thawing time, advises Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Extension home economist

Foods that are 40° or below are usually safe. Ice crystals in the food are usually a good sign that the food is safe for cooking or refreezing If you do refreeze food plan to use it quickly and don't expect it to have the same quality as food that has been continually frozen. Any off odor before or during cooking means spoilage has probably set in Freezing does not kill bacteria but does slow its growth. Bacteria can double their numbers in 15 minutes at temperatures above 40 degrees Foods at higher temperatures for even short periods of time are extremely dangerous.

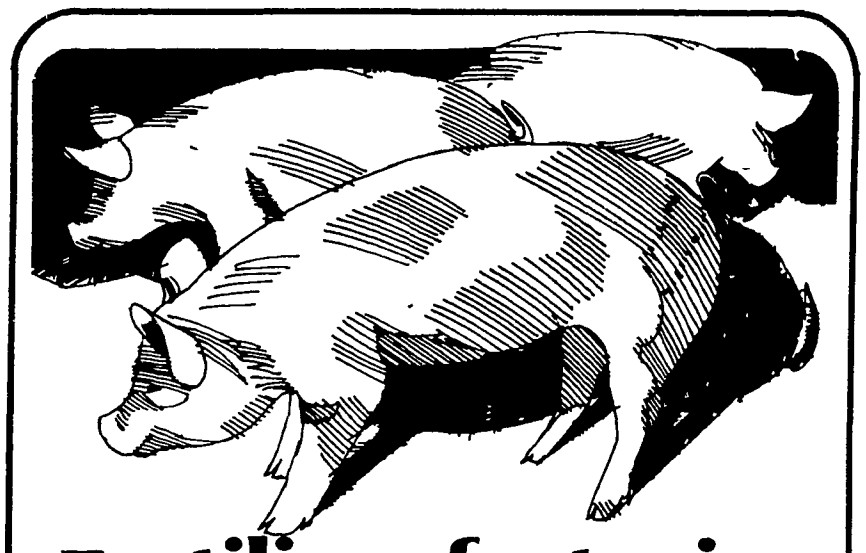
And cooking does not kill all food bacteria. Of the two bacteria that usually cause illness, only one is killed by heating



Fertilizer factories

A single 150-lb. hog yields about $11.00 of fertilizer value a year. Multiply that by the number of hogs you raise and you have a substantial supply of N, P, K you don't have to buy.

But it has to be managed. That means the right handling and spreading equipment Calumet vacuum tanks are built to last with heavy-duty components and a choice of two vacuum pumps — both engineered to load fast and run cool

To get the most value from hog manure, pair your Calumet vacuum tank to a Calumet 2 or 4-shank soil injector and put manure where it does the most good

Take advantage of the value produced by your living fertilizer factories — with Calumet manure management equipment

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

DOING IT YOURSELF SAVES MONEY IF YOU HAVE THE SKILLS

You have decided to finish off your basement, or to turn your attic into a study. Should you hire a contractor for the job or roll up your sleeves and do it yourself?

The answer, of course, is, "It depends." You may be able to save a good deal of money by doing the work yourself, if you have the time and the know-how, or are willing to learn.

For safety, and in consideration of legal code restrictions, such items as heating, plumbing, and wiring are best left to the experts, but the homeowner who is handy with tools can save money on walls, floors, ceilings and built-ins.

Having a home-improvement contractor do your work for you may cost more but can save you much time and energy. The contractor will take responsibility for the complete job, but will expect you to select the materials and tell him, before work is started, exactly what you want the finished room to be like. If you decide to use a contractor, obtain more than one cost estimate and make certain all are based on the same specifications, such as labor and materials. Be very specific about the quality of the materials you want used.

The best way to assure that the estimate covers only that work you want done is to write down exactly what you want done and have all contractors bid on only those specifications, with any additional work or changes to the original request as a separate bid. Don't select a contractor on the basis of cost alone. Consider how long he has been in business, and his reputation for giving satisfactory service. If a friend or neighbor has a finished basement or attic you especially like, ask his contractor for an estimate. Don't hesitate to check with your banker or the local Better Business Bureau about the reliability of any contractor you are thinking of doing business with.

When work is about to begin, don't handicap the contractor with the old furniture, boxes, and other items you have stored in the basement or attic. Remove everything from the area and have it "broom clean" when the workmen arrive.

LIME TIME

If you do not use limes in your cooking - you're missing a good bet. Limes have all the good qualities of other citrus fruits, plus that sharp "limey" flavor that is unlike any other.

U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing specialists say August is a good time to discover the versatility of limes, because there are plenty of them.

Why not start your lime adventure by making popular lime gelatin fresher tasting? Follow package directions, but replace two tablespoons of water with two tablespoons of fresh-squeezed lime juice. Before you cut the lime to squeeze the juice, grate a teaspoon of the peel. Grating the larger whole lime helps prevent grating your knuckles. Adding the grated peel to the lime gelatin gives it an even crisper, fresher taste.

Limes enliven the flavor of other foods, as well.

LIME SYRUP SUPREME

1/4 cup fresh-squeezed lime juice
1/4 cup sugar

In a small saucepan combine lime juice and sugar. Bring to a boil, then simmer for one minute to dissolve sugar. While still warm, pour over pound cake or gingerbread.

FRESH LIME BUTTER

1/2 cup soft butter or margarine

Extension agents receive service awards

UNIVERISTY PARK — Four members of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service staff are among 110 agents in the United States who received Distinguished Service Awards at the recent annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

C. R. Bryan

Harold R. Bock

Those honored were Harold R. Bock, Clearfield County Extension director; C.R. Bryan, Jr., Delaware County Extension agent; Gordon D. Walker, Mifflin County Extension agent; and Edward J. Woods, Washington County Extension director.

According to R. Blaine Schlosser, Crawford County Extension director and state awards committee chairman, the four men were cited for "outstanding educational contributions to Pennsylvania's agriculture."

The awards program highlighted the annual meeting where about 2,500 Extension agents were convening to review their responsibilities as educators.

Bock, a member of the Extension staff since 1962, was honored for his educational work in improving soil fertility of agricultural land, increasing milk production by reducing herd health problems, and the reclamation of strip mined areas. A native of Philipsburg, he earned two degrees from Penn State.

Bryan, a native of Shillington, has been a member of the Delaware County staff since 1956. He was cited for the development of a comprehensive 4-H program for urban and non-farm youth. He earned a bachelor of science degree from Penn State.

Walker, a native of Erie County, coordinates Mifflin County's 4-H programs and conducts educational programs for beekeepers and dairy groups. A member of the Extension staff since 1954, he received a bachelor of science degree from Penn State.

Woods, a native of Indiana County, has been a member of the Extension staff since 1958. He was cited for his educational programs in the areas of marketing, rural development, dairy and livestock production. He received two degrees from Penn State.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It has become apparent that my days as a farm homemaker have split into two distinct time periods. In fact, I now wonder how I managed to operate from 1964 to 1980 B.C.

B.C. in this case means "Before Crockpots."

Oh sure, I had the oven, the electric fry pan, the microwave. Still, none of these quite filled the particular need of a cook who frequently departs the kitchen for a full day and dreads to come home to a family wanting supper on the table five minutes ago.

The crockpot, bless its warm, simmering heart, is the perfect answer.

I've discovered I can pack up and leave for a day at a cattle show, for instance, and return home to a pot of ham and fresh string beans cooked to juicy perfection.

Arriving home an hour later than expected no longer leaves the pot roast dried up and tasteless, only more fork-tender.

On those days when everyone wanders in for supper at different times, the soup, or stew, or chili in the crockpot eliminates the reheating hassle. Besides that, everyone can serve themselves and still leave only one kettle to clean.

And in the midst of this canning-freezing season, I've found the crockpot is right handy as an extra cooking utensils to prepare applesauce, or tomatoes, or pumpkin, or corn for processing.

Now here's a little hint if you'd like to add a crockpot to your kitchen essentials, but just haven't gotten around to doing so.

Mine arrived under last year's Christmas tree. It followed numerous broad hints, suggestions and obviously pointed comments about how "a crockpot would really come in handy for the way we live."

Beware. It is not too early to begin mapping plans to similarly acquire this irreplaceable kitchen necessity. You know there are only 124 days left until Christmas.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My last night in Paris turned out to be pleasant despite a slow start. Most of our group went to a nightclub for $48 per person, while some of us were left to entertain ourselves.

After a quiet meal with a couple from Vermont, who decided to retire at 8 p.m., I started on a walk around our hotel. It remains light in Europe until almost 10:15 p.m. I met another couple who was just going out to eat and they asked me to join them

I very much wanted to sit in a cane-seated chair at a cafe on the sidewalk and eat and sip a drink as is the traditional thing to do in Paris. Now was my opportunity. Although, as it was late, we had to inquire at three different places before we finally were served outside.

The temperature during our whole trip was a cool 65 to 75 degrees.

Next morning we traveled through the wine-growing regions of France into the Jura Mt. section of Switzerland It was a long, ten hour drive on the Autobohn to Neuchatel where a banquet meal awaited us. It was quite fancy and included onion soup, a big salad, roast beef with mushrooms and a pasta. The dessert served over a two hour period was a rum cake with custard and fruit.

We caught our first glimpse of the beautiful snow-covered Alps and tiny villages with narrow streets where each house has colorful flower boxes at the windows There small gardens contained onions, lettuce, beans, Swiss chard and red currants.

The farmers only mow small pieces of hay at one time on the steep hillsides and then dry it on small wooden triangular racks. We were told that is their soil erodes, then they carry it back up the hills again.

Our bus took us to the wood-carving village of Brienz where we could shop. In the afternoon we took a very clean Swiss train for a smooth trip into the Simmen Valley. We were privileged to go high up into a summer pasture and see the chalet that the herdsman shares with the cattle.

The one end of the farmer's barn was protected not only by avalanche fences high on the mountain but also by a stone gable end and a stone roof. We heard the tinkling of cow bells and saw a prize Simmental bull. After touring the farmer's home in the village, we were served wine and cheese — a very dry cheese that was sliced on a slaw board.

Non-farm programs share 4-H spotlight

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Later this month, the 100th Maryland State Fair will see the traditional programs in livestock, food and clothing sharing the spotlight with a 4-H dog show, photography exhibit, and consumer judging and a bicycle contest.

Almost 25 percent of Maryland's 4-H members come from cities of over 50,000 people. Less than 12 percent come from farms.

From nearly 40,000 4-H members in Maryland, each of the 23 counties and Baltimore City will send two 4-H'ers to the 1981 Maryland 4-H Fashion Revue. The selection is made from local and county-wide competitions. One of the 48 participants will be selected to represent Maryland in a National 4-H Fashion Revue. The Maryland selection will be announced September 4 at 8 p.m.

A 4-H automotive contest is scheduled at 6 p.m. in the Horse Show Ring on Thursday, September 3. Knowledge and skill in handling cars safely will be judged.

One of the more recent additions to the 4-H activities at the fair is a team of 4-H press photographers and reporters. Members of the press team are selected by Extension specialists from the University of Maryland. Under the supervision of photographers, journalists and radio personnel from the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, these young men and women will report the 4-H activities at Timonium to Maryland newspapers and radio stations.

An additional feature at the fair will be the opportunity for "running" enthusiasts to file an entry in the 10-kilometer Clover Classic. Entry forms will be available at the Choice Park in front of the 4-H building. Race information for the October 3rd event will also be available from state 4-H council members.

Fleas are a warm weather pest for your pet

LANCASTER — For the household pet, summer and early fally means more walks in the park, leisurely car rides and lazy days in the back yard. Unfortunately, summer and tall can also mean more fleas.

You should suspect that your cat or dog has fleas if the pet scratches vigorously at the skin around the ears, neck, tail or hind legs. These are the areas most commonly infected by fleas. You can also part the pet's hair and look for small, dark brown insects that scurry away from the light.

These small, blood-sucking pests can be much more than a passing nuisance. They feed on your pet's blood, and large numbers of them can make a young kitten or puppy anemic. They may also be the indirect cause of bald spots, redness or other types of skin irritation that develop when the pet scratches its inflamed skin. Fleas are also intermediate hosts for tapeworms. If an irritated cat or dog snaps at an infected flea and swallows it, the tapeworm will be released to continued its development in the pet's digestive tract.

There are a variety of products that you can choose to relieve your pet's flea problem.

Flea powders are easy to apply but messy. Some contain ingredients that kill fleas; others temporarily stun the insects, which must be brushed out of the pet's coat onto newspapers, and burned.

Shampoos are the most effective way to eliminate a heavy flea infestation. You begin by thoroughly wetting the cat or dog, starting just behind the ears, and working in the insecticidal soap from neck to tail. It's important to shampoo the entire animal, including the underside. You don't want to leave dry spots where the fleas can escape the shampoo. You should also carefully soap and rinse the pet's ear flaps and muzzle, keeping the soapy water out of the pet's eyes and inner ear canal.

Flea collars and tags are another way to attack your pet's flea problem. These products will slowly release insecticides for several months, if you follow directions for use carefully. The collars should be carefully adjusted so they don't rub the pet's coat or irritate the skin. The tags must be close enough to the body so pets can't chew on them.

Treating your pet is only half of the solution to the flea problem. The fleas must also be eliminated from your home or yard. If you don't deflea your pet's surroundings, the cat or dog will be reinfected in a few days.

You can begin by throughly vacuuming the entire house, with special attention to cracks, baseboards, and furniture where the pet sits. Make sure you discard the vacuum bag, or empty it promptly and burn the contents. You can then use a flea spray or flea bomb, or pay a professional exterminator to spray your home.

Outdoor areas can be treated with an appropriate spray or dust. Cover the driveways, walks,

Did you know?

Kids, as you have probably learned in school, the United States is slowly converting to the metric system. If you haven't learned the new system in school and are still using the customary method (the inch, pound system), try your skills at the puzzle below. If you already can master the method, give the mind teaser to mom and dad and see if they do as well. Remember, they'll have to convert too!

You and your parents will soon have to weigh your milk in liters and tell the weather forecast in Celsius. To help you prepare for this hopefully far-off event, we will run some games and puzzles in the next few weeks for you to do. A little prestudy before school starts never hurt anybody.

building foundation, and areas where the pet sits. Be very careful to follow the directions, and keep your pet indoors until the job is done and the spray has dried. You don't want the pet walking or rolling in the treated areas for several hours.

Some insecticides that kill the immature and adult fleas have no effect against the insect's eggs and pupa resting stage. For this reason, the directions on certain products recommend treatment in three to five days to kill the new generation of fleas. Do not apply flea products more often than the instructions suggest; they are strong chemicals and should be used with care.

Insecticides manufactured for home use should not be used on pets. These products may contain ingredients that can sicken or even kill your pets. Also, cats and dogs react to insecticides differently; a product designed especially for dogs may not be safe for a cat or kitten. It's always best to use a product that is recommended for your type of pet. If you have any questions about treating your pet's flea problem, it's a good idea to talk with your veterinarian. He or she can recommend an appropriate product and outline the best way to use it.

Bradford-Sullivan energy group organizes

WYSOX — The Bradford-Sullivan County Energy Group will officially organize this Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Wysox Presbyterian Church. Attorney Paul Mazza will be present to begin preparing lease agreements for all group members.

The meeting was planned by the Bradford-Sullivan County Energy Group steering committee, comprised of 14 men and women from all sections of the two counties.

Appointed by the board of the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers Association, the committee members say they unanimously believe the standard oil and gas lease presently being offered by leasing companies in the area is far from adequate to protect their land. The committee is dedicated to counteract the power of the leasing companies and is asking people to join in a group effort to withhold land from leasing until better monetary and non-monetary lease terms can be negotiated with the leasing companies through Attorney Mazza.

The energy group concept was initiated by Mazza, lawyer for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association Legal Service, early in the year and the movement has spread throughout the state within the county organizations of PFA. Mazza has already been successful in some counties gaining better leasing agreements.

Under the leadership of Gary Green, chairman, of Bradford-Sullivan Steering Committee determined the September 8 meeting will be specifically for those landowners who intend to join the group. Anyone who wishes to join the group, but cannot attend the meeting is asked to contact their area committeeman.

Members of the committee are Gary Green, Warren Center; Donald Brown, R1 Rome; David Moon, R1, New Albany; Margaret Gray, R2 Laceyville; Flora Albrecht, Columbia Cross Roads; Mr. and Mrs. Robert White, R3, Columbia Cross Roads; Edward Shaffer, R4 Towanda; Harold McCarty, R1 Sugar Run; Scott Shedden, R1 Canton; William Hart, R1 Forksville; Willard Bates, Stevensville; Richard Bennett, Spring Hill; and Jane Bresee, R1 Ulster.-J.B.

Cumberland hog champ brings $3.25

CARLISLE — The auctioneers's yodel rang out Tuesday evening at the Carlisle Livestock Market, beginning the 1981 4-H Swine Sale.

Dave Shultz, Mechanicsburg, was first on the sale ticket with his 225 pound grand champion hog of the 4-H roundup. The bidding began on the champion — $2.00-$2.50-$3.00 — and the Country Butcher Shop Plainfield, closed the highest bid of the sale at $3.25.

The 190 pound reserve 4-H champion hog owned by Glenn Finkenbinder, Carlisle, was next in the sale ring. Hatfield Packing Co., Country Butcher Shop and Wayne Craig kept the bidding lively for this reserve champion with the final nod coming from Hatfield Packing Co. for $1.90.

Hatfield Packing Co. showed no reservation in the bidding arena as they heartily continued to nod-in their bids for the champion pen of three hogs owned by 4-H'er Steve Otto, Carlisle, at 70 cents and the champions pen of two owned by Cindy Otto, Carlisle, at 65 cents.

Throughout the 4-H hog sale prices stayed 5 to 10 cents above the open market price with the lowest sale ticket marked for 50 cents a pound.

During Tuesday afternoon the 4-H'ers held their annual roundup and showing and fitting contest. C. Eugene Wingert, regional director of the Department of Agriculture judged the contest.

Selected as the senior champion showman was Brad Fickes, Newville. In the intermediate competition, Raymond Motter, Newville, was the champion and Tammy Burruss was the champion junior showman.

The fitting contest followed with Karen Fought, Carlisle, awarded the trophy as the champion intermediate fitter of the show. Crowned champion junior fitter was Kim Warner of Carlisle.

Fickes Silo, Inc., Newville, presented the trophies of the showing and fitting contest to the five outstanding individuals.

Project awards were presented based upon the following scores. fitting, showmanship, type of animal and complete project books.

Blue ribbon winners were: Jeff Warner, Newville; David Shultz, Mechanicsburg; Steve Otto, Carlisle; Paul Burruss, Newville; Robert Allen, Carlisle; Glenn Finkenbinder, Newville; Brent Kutz, Newville; and Cindy Otto, Carlisle.

Those receiving red ribbons were: Brian Hair, Carlisle; Kim Warner, Newville; Hayden Stitt, Carlisle; Jody Sharek, Newville; Jim McCullough, Newville; Karen Fought, Carlisle; and Tammy Burruss, Newville.

Buyers supporting the 4-H Swine Sale were: Hatfield Packing Co., Hatfield; Wayne Craig, Shippensburg; Highland's Tire Service, Newville; Ken Emery, Ephrata; Jay Roush, Carlisle; John W. Kerchner, Carlisle; J C. Eberts, Carlisle, William Ile, Shippensburg; Robert Weikert, Fairfield; Dysinger Meat Market, Thompsontown; Knisely's Agricultural Center, Carlisle; North Mountain Butcher Shop, Newville; Frank Fraker, York; Thomas Sheaffer, Huntsdale; Locust Point Quarries, Mechanicsburg; Souder Feed and Grain, Mechanicsburg; Fiddlers Green Farm, Newville; Fickes Silo, Inc., Newville; Fred Potteiger, Carlisle; F.B. Zettlemoyer, Marysville; Petersman Farm Equipment, Carlisle; Todd McAllister, Etters; and M. Richard Zimmerman, Plainfield.

Robert Finkenbinder of the Country Butcher Shop, Plainfield, made Cumberland County 4-H'er David Shultz, Mechanicsburg, a happy young man last week when he bought David's 225-pound grand champion market hog at the 1981 Cumberland County 4-H Swine Sale for $3.25 a pound.

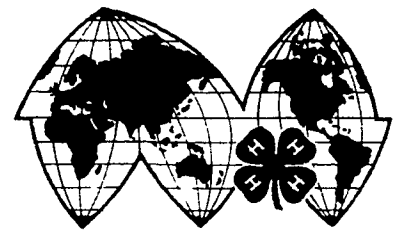
York Baby Beef Club meets

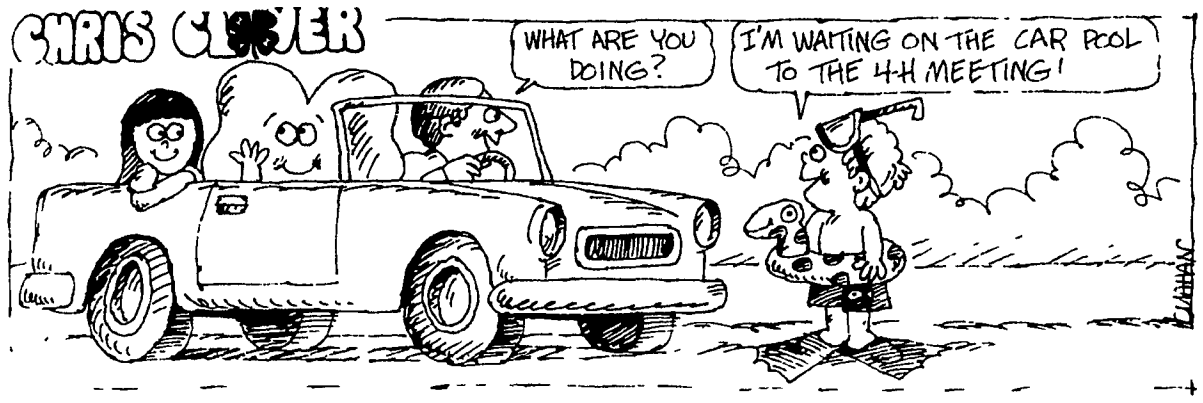
YORK — On August 3, the York County 4-H Baby Beef Club held their monthly meeting at Hidden Lane Farm.

Showmanship was explained by John Hausner and Brenda Walters. A summer fitting demonstration was then given by Tim Livingston.

Reports were given on the Junior Livestock Field Day, the York County Judging Contest, the Lehigh County Judging Contest, and the York County Farmers' Association tour.

The caretaker fee for York Fair was set at five dollars a head and caretakers are still needed.





4-H wins recycling challenge

LEBANON — Four-H'ers challenged the Lions Club to make a bigger pile of aluminum cans at the Lebanon Area Fair than they could — and the 4-H'ers won.

According to Daniel Shiner, recycling chairman, over 10,000 cans have been recycled. Danny points out that "recycling aluminum saves 95% of the energy that it takes to make it from raw ore." The 1981 Keystone Winner in 4-H Energy has been involved in 4-H Energy programs for 8 years.

The contest is an outgrowth of Danny's interest in energy and 4-H agent Linda Rohrbach's experience with recycling at the National 4-H Center. It began earlier this year as a Teen Council project.

Says Linda, "We wanted to show the broad range of 4-H at the Lebanon Area Fair and also wanted to involve the public. We were very pleased with the Lions Clubs' support. They actively accepted our challenge."

Judges for the contest were Lebanon mayor, Don Griffith, and Myerstown mayor, Frank Ondrusek.

A side benefit of the recycling is that the cans reaped $.23 per pound at a local recycler. Proceeds go to the Lebanon 4-H Development Fund.

Damian Shiner recycling chairman dumps more cans into the large collection the 4-H'ers gathered at the Lebanon County Fair.

Ken Coleman, Lions Club representative from Annville Area; Don Griffith, Lebanon mayor; Frank Ondrusek, Myerstown mayor; and Beth Shiner, 4-H member, all pose with the trophy in front of the 10,000 gathered cans.

Md. 4-H'ers have new Fair home

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Maryland's 4-H exhibitors at the 100th State Fair will be celebrating the centennial year in a new 28,000 square foot 4-H/Home Arts building. The building will house exhibits relating to food, clothing, home furnishings, vegetables, flowers, woodworking, electricity, entomology, photography, art and crafts.

More than 3,500 4-H'ers are expected in the contests, judging events, demonstrations and shows at the traditional "4-H Week at Timonium."

The week that opens with a 4-H Dog Show in the Cow Palace Show Ring at 9 a.m. on opening day, August 29, and closes with the 4-H/FFA Parade on Sunday, September 6, will be filled with Maryland youth exhibiting not only agricultural products but also skills in photography, art, small engine maintenance and repair, and automobile care and safety. From the slightly less than 12 percent of Maryland's 4-H members who live on farms will come sheep, cows, steers, and swine that will demonstrate the care and knowledge acquired in 4-H livestock projects.

Members will also demonstrate skills at operating tractors with four-wheel wagons in tow, "trouble-shooting" disabled or unsafe automobiles, and following a rigorous written exam which demonstrates what they have learned about handling a car through a forward and reverse serpentine course. Champions from this event will proceed to regional competition later in the fall.

The 100th Maryland State Fair will produce champion livestock which can provide first-year college costs for a 4-H member or a deluge of tears as an animal that has been cared for, coddled and coaxed to a championship is led away at the livestock sale on September 2.

On Friday, September 4 at 8 p.m., the 1981 4-H Fashion Revue will parade well-groomed and manicured 4-H models across a stage at the Horse Sales Pavilion to demonstrate the fashion-making abilities of Maryland 4-H'ers. A grand champion will be selected and will receive an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Fashion Revue in Chicago during 4-H Club Congress.

When the week ends, thousands of Maryland's young people — 4-H members from 9-19 — will have shared skills and demonstrated the 4-H goals of "learning by doing" and "making the best better." They will have come from farms, towns and cities to participate in an agricultural celebration that began 100 years ago.

Karen Leidy of Souderton exhibited the champion lightweight and reserve champion Montgomery County market hog. Tom Leidy of Leidy's Meats in Souderton was the buyer, paying $2.70 a pound for the prize-winning animal.

Ag arena consignments continue to sign up

UNIVERSITY PARK — Dairy and livestock producers continue to consign animals to an all-breeds sale to aid The Pennsylvania State University's Ag Arena fund raising project.

Consignments now total 63, according to Dr. Milford Heddleson, College of Agriculture coordinator of environmental quality affairs and co-chairman of the fund raising campaign.

The goal is several hundred high quality animals in this sale to be held December 11 in Harrisburg's Farm Show Complex.

Breeders who consign beef, sheep, swine, and dairy animals are being asked to donate at least 50 percent of the sale price to the building fund. Breed associations are participating in securing and selecting consignments.

The 190,000-square-foot facility, to be located adjacent to Beaver Stadium, will provide for classes and laboratories involving horses, dairy, and livestock. It also will be used for various demonstrations connected with Extension courses and conferences.

The latest consignments include:

Dairy Cattle:

Holstein: Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 2 heifers.

Beef Cattle:

Angus — Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 1 heifer.

Charolais — Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 1 heifer.

Polled Hereford — Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 1 heifer.

Horticulture club enjoys picnic

YORK — The summer meeting of the York County 4-H Horticulture Club was held at Dave Detter's place.

Plant diseases and problems were discussed from plant material provided by the members.

Denise Chase, the new horticulture agent for York County, was introduced to the group.

The fall meeting will be a tour of RockLemen's Nursery on September 28.

Vegetable Freaks were featured at the York County 4-H Fair. First place went to Frank Lecrone with a double yellow squash entitled "I like to be close to my mommy," second to Hillary Fahey, third to Joe Kendall, fourth to Patty Bupp, and fifth to David Lentz.

Country Farmers' Fair brings farming to town

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

CARLISLE — Last week the Carlisle Plaza Mall was transformed into a toe tapping, hand clapping Country Farmers Fair sponsored by local radio station Country 96 WHYL.

Delena Kelley, advertising and promotion director of Country 96/ZUE 102 said, "The Country Fair was held for the enjoyment and educational benefit of the community as the people viewed the displays and activities of farmers and farm related organizations."

One fairgoer remarked, "The Country Farmers Fair is really informative even to an old country girl like me."

During the three-day event Cumberland County dairy farmers were represented by their dairy princess Cheryl Witmer and Vicki Basehore, who enjoyed telling the audiences about the history of milk, traveling from farm to family. As the princesses handed out cheese snacks, they told how the factory system of processing and distributing dairy products first was made possible.

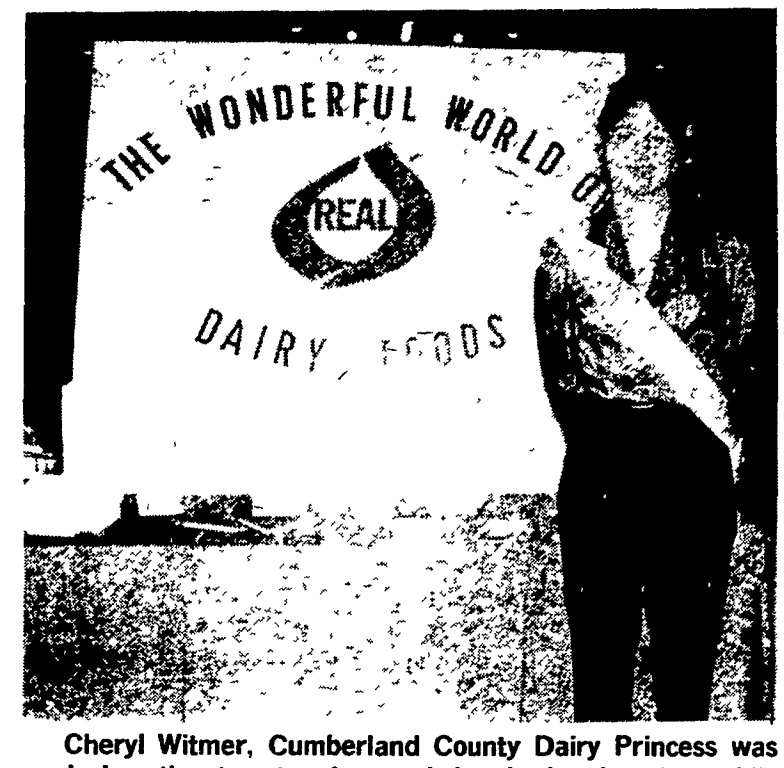
The story begins around 1880 when the factory system of collecting and processing milk was made possible due to certain scientific achievements. First the centrifugal cream separator was invented. Then, in 1890 Babrach discovered a way to show the amount of butterfat in milk and in 1893 Thatcher invented a satisfactory glass bottle. The princesses completed their story with Louis Pasteur's discovery of pasteurization.

Toni Andrews, Franklin County Apple Queen had some delicious advice for all. The Apple Queen stated, "Although we eat apples because they are delicious, it is fortunate that apples are plentiful, economical and good for your health."

As Toni passed out apple juice to everyone, she cited studies which have shown apple juice has relatively low acid content, making it an excellent liquid for adults and children alike. She said she believes in the old saying, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away."

Eggatha, the 'beautiful egg,' was at the fair to greet everyone and tell them about the goodness of the "incredible, edible egg." Eggatha was spreading the word about the excellent source of protein, iron and phosphorus that eggs provide. Also, the egg yolk is a rich source of vitamins A, D and B. Along with their nutritional value, Eggatha, went on to proclaim the economic values of eggs — low cost and a natural food Eggatha sighed talking to one passerby, "We are truly incredible and edible!"

Cumberland County 4-H'ers were pledging their heads and hands at the Farmers Fair, informing the public about their youth organization. These 4-H youth told fairgoers that 4-H isn't just cows and cookin'. It is for everyone no matter where they live. The youth expressed their experiences through displays and exhibits of their yearling projects.



Cheryl Witmer, Cumberland County Dairy Princess was enjoying the toe tapping and hand clapping fun while promoting the No. 1 product - MILK - at the Country Farmers Fair, Carlisle Plaza Mall.

Franklin County Apple Queen Toni Andrews says, "apples up" as she passed out Franklin County Apple juice last week at the Country Farmers' Fair, Carlisle Plaza Mall.

Saturday evening square dancers twirlled, bowed and do-si-doed the first Country Farmers Fair to a close with the audience joining in the foot stomping, hand clapping good old country time.

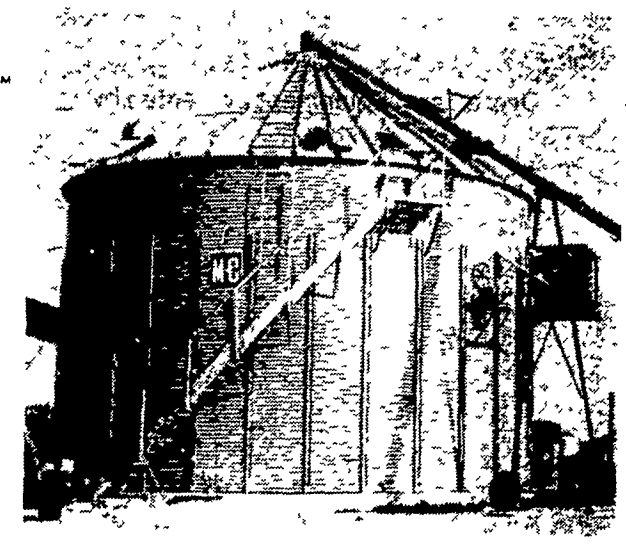
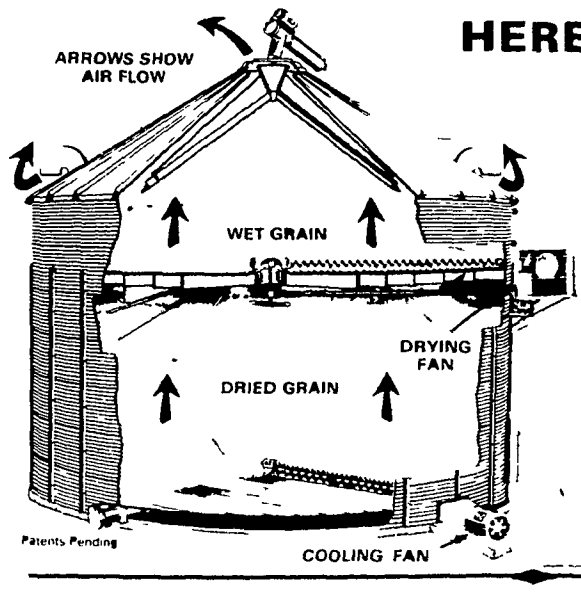
GREAT GRAIN HANDLING SYSTEMS BEGIN WITH GOOD PLANNING & M-C DRYERS
Now Available!
M-C DRYBINE™
The ENERGY SAVING IN-BIN DRYING SYSTEM
The new Mathews Continuous In Bin Dryer is a combination storage drying and cooling bin designed to save you money It is efficient fast easy to manage and costs less to operate The drying process is fast while the cooling process is slow eliminating stress cracks and damage caused by fast cooling There is nothing else like it on the market The Mathews design requires no wet holding bin or separate bin for cooling



● Saves energy for profitable operations
● Eliminates the most common problems found in other in bin dryers
● Proven high capacity results (357 bushels per hour)
● Low per bushel costs



HERE'S HOW IT WORKS...
As wet grain enters the top of the bin, it flows into the upper drying chamber as harvested with no need for a wet holding bin This upper chamber holds up to 4 feet of wet grain (2250 bushels)
Every seven minutes a continuous flow auger makes a complete revolution around the upper drying floor drawing the dried grain into the lower cooling area
Hot air is introduced under the upper floor to dry the wet grain and to heat the surface of the grain that is distributed into the lower cooling chamber The air that is used for cooling the grain picks up heat during the cooling process This heated air is then used again in the drying process, saving on fuel costs
When not being used for drying the bin will store 8500 bushels of grain

Gruber, purchasing agent of A & B Packing Company, Allentown, PA.

The outstanding 4-H sale was made possible by active buyer support and interest. Hatfield Packing Co. and W.R. Sellers were not only buyers of the champions but provided excellent buying support throughout the sale. Wayne Craig and Sons, Orrstown, having supported the sale many years were on the scene and purchased thirteen hogs.

New buyers were, the Chambersburg Trust Co., Garmen Real Estate, Chambersburg, Sellhammer Insurance, Shippensburg; Hillside Poultry Farms, Chambersburg, Twigg Insurance Co., Chambersburg; and Jay Morland Farms, Westminster, Md.

Buying support also came from Phares Horst, Hagerstown; Rosenberry Meat Market, Chambersburg, The Orrstown Bank; Lynn Schwalm, Herndon; Brook Meadow Provisions, Hagerstown; and Butter Lane Farms Butcher Shop, Waynesboro.

According to County Agent Bill Reagan, this was one of the best 4-H Pig sales held in recent years, made possible by strong buyer support.

The Annual event has been supported by the Chambersburg Livestock Market for the past 39 consecutive years, with owner Milton Silver treating all members to a free lunch.

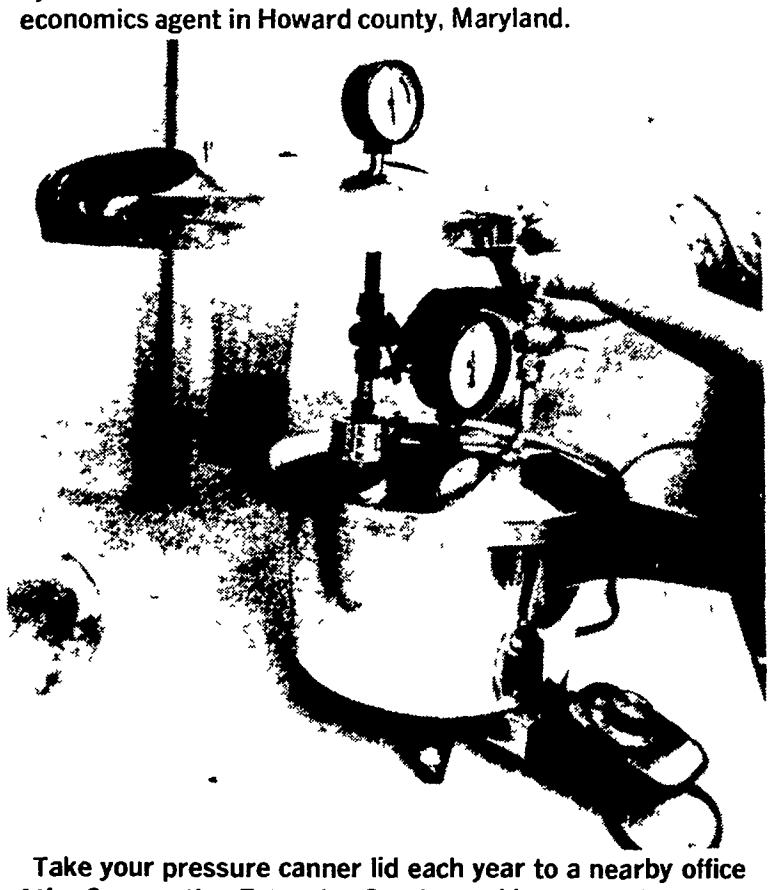
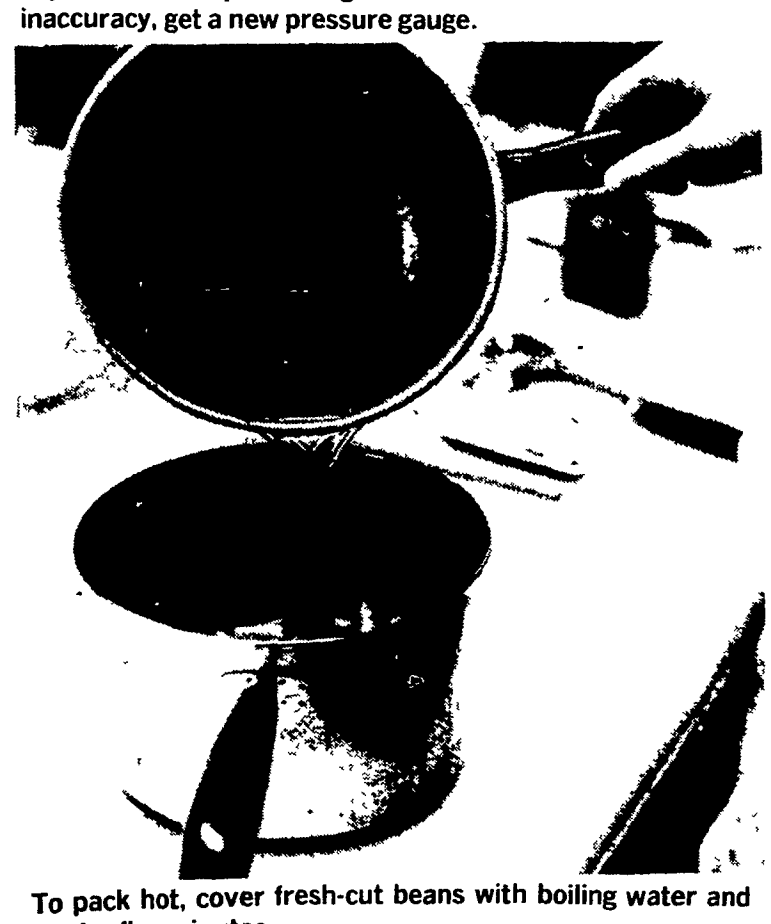
Proper home canning is safe and flavorful

Use a pressure canner for processing green beans and most other garden vegetables. Correctly done, pressure-canning prevents food poisoning. Check to see that rubber gasket is clean and in good condition, as demonstrated here by Coralee Cutler of Randallstown, an Extension home economics agent in Howard county, Maryland.



Take your pressure canner lid each year to a nearby office of the Cooperative Extension Service and have the dial gauge tested for accuracy, as shown here. If your gauge (upper dial) differs slightly from the standard (lower dial), make mental adjustments in processing times. If there is considerable inaccuracy, get a new pressure gauge.



To pack hot, cover fresh-cut beans with boiling water and leave for five minutes.

UNIVERISTY PARK, Md. — Thanks to modern technology and educational methods, home canning today—when done properly—results in garden produce that is delicious, nutritious and safe to eat. However, some types of produce will keep longer than others, even when the canning is done properly.

Some pointers on modern home canning have been provided by Dorothy P. VanZandt, Extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park. VanZandt is also acting assistant director for home economics with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

In general, VanZandt recommends canning as the least expensive method of home food preservation. But before you leap into canning, consider these questions

—How much time do I have available?

—What equipment do I need to purchase?

—Do I have adequate storage space?

The Extension specialist suggests that canning ought to be a family affair if you're going to follow the rule of two hours from garden to container.

Speed is a key element in producing canned food with good flavor, she explained. Another ingredient in the flavor formula is garden produce that is free from disease and at the peak of condition. All produce should be ripe but not overmature.

Equipment may not be a problem if you are processing fruits, tomatoes, pickled vegetables or other produce with a

Pack hot beans loosely into jar. Leave 1/2-inch space at top of jar for expansion during processing. Be sure there is enough water to cover beans in the jar. Beans not covered with water may turn dark. Overpacking containers may result in underprocessing.

If desired add ½ teaspoon of salt for flavor to each pint jar of beans, as shown here. Use one teaspoonful for each quart jar. Be sure to use canning salt. Table salt yields an inferior product. Salt-free canning can also be done without difficulty.

Wipe jar rim clean to assure a perfect seal and to avoid bacterial contamination. Jars should also have been washed in hot water ahead of time and rims checked for rough edges.

Hunterdon 4-H beef announces winners

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Hunterdon County 4-H'ers held their annual Beef Show during the Achievement Fair on August 8.

Champion Hereford steer went to Cindy Brenner, Ringoes. Robert Hasselbrook, Flemington, was named the reserve champion by the judge Rodney Gilbert, Livestock Superintendant at Delaware Valley College.

The Champion Charolais steer was exhibited by Adam Roerig, Pittstown; while the reserve champion honors went to Clifford Higgins, Princetown.

Glen Mayer of Glen Gardner, and Lisa Trimmer, Califon, had the champion and reserve champion Angus Steers, respectively. In the crossbred division Michelle Brenner, Ringoes received the championship ribbon. Taking the reserve champion honors was Stanley Novak, Flemington.

Hereford Heifers were the only breeding class shown and two sisters took home the prizes in that division. Karen Fostick, Frenchtown and her sister Janet were named champion and reserve, respectively.

The champion senior showman and fitter award went to Cindy Brenner. The reserve champion was Glen Mayer with Karen Fostick, placing third. In the fitting competition the reserve champion was Dana Palmer, Sergeantsville and third place was Karen Fostick.

The champion intermediate division showman was Allison Neuberger, Pennington. Bucky Blemings, Califon was the reserve champion, and David Hasselbrook was third.

David Hasslebrook, Flemington was selected as the champion intermediate fitter, and his brother Robert was selected as the reserve champion. Third place in the fitting category went to Gregory Novak of Flemington.

Clifford Higgins, Princeton was named the champion beginner showman and Christopher Baker was selected as the reserve. Third place honors went to Victoria Harris.

The champion beginner fitter was Christopher Baker. The reserve champion was Victoria Harris and third place was Heidi Mehlman.

high acid content, as these require only a boiling-water-bath canner. But pressure canners are needed to assure flavorful and safe results with other vegetables, which have a low acid content.

New pressure canners are fairly expensive, but used equipment can do a perfect job if the rubber gaskets and pressure gauge are in good condition. You may be able to pick up a used pressure canner at a flea market for a reasonable price.

Whatever the source, be sure that the pressure gauge dial is accurate and is the proper one for your equipment. It's a good idea to take your pressure canner lid once a year for testing at the nearest office of the Extension Service. There's an office in every Maryland county and in Baltimore city

Some pressure canners use small weights instead of a pressure gauge dial. Such equipment does not need testing. All canning equipment, however, should be thoroughly cleaned before use, VanZandt commented.

For storing canned goods, she recommends a cool, dark area. Old-fashioned fruit cellars, insulated from basement heat, are ideal for this purpose. If storage space is limited, consider using up as much fresh produce as possible from your garden this summer and fall. Then can only the best of your garden surplus.

Detailed information on canning and other methods of home food preservation is available from Extension home economics agents in every Maryland county and in Baltimore city. Check your local newspapers and radio stations for announcements of food preservation training sessions.

The accompanying photographs illustrate the step-by-step procedure for canning green beans, as taught at a food preservation workshop this summer in Howard County, Maryland.

Lid adjustments vary with type being used. For type shown here, place the flat metal lid on clean jar rim with sealing compound next to the glass. Then screw metal band down firmly prior to processing.

Fall soil test has the edge

UNIVERSITY PARK — Fall soil testing has the edge over spring testing in several ways, reports Douglas Beegle, Extension agronomist at Penn State University.

Farmers who have their soils tested in the fall get the jump on those who wait until spring.

By getting soil test results in the fall, farmers will have all winter to plan the next season's fertilizer program. Having enough time to plan can often mean the different between a successful fertilizer program and a poor one.

There's another important advantage, too, Beegle points out. If the soil test indicates a need for lime, fall is the ideal time to apply it. Lime added in the fall has plenty of time to begin its benefical reactions on the soil before the spring planting season.

Fall applications of fertilzer are also good, especially where the soil needs phosphate potash to build its crop yielding level.

"Good as gold winners announced

Agency Merchandising Director Jim Whelan (center) and Shop N' Bag Store Manager Francis Brinavera (left) award the $10,000 "Good as Gold" Grand Prize certificate to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Magid of Philadelphia.

TOWSON, Md. — Samuel Magid, of Philadelphia, has been named the grand prize winner in the "Milk's as Good as Gold" Sweepstakes, sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area Advertising and Promotion Agency.

Eighty-year-old Magid and his wife Lillian were awarded a check for $10,000 at the Shop N' Bag Store, 2417 Welsh Road, Philadelphia - the store where Mr. Magid picked up his winning entry blank while running an errand for his wife.

The sweepstakes was initiated, in March, as a means of introducing consumers in the Mid-Atlantic area to the "REAL" Seal, a symbol of real dairy foods which is akin to a "Good Housekeeping" seal for the dairy industry. The "REAL" Seal, a symbolic drop of milk with the word "real" inside, will eventually appear on all dairy packaging and will enable shoppers to recognize genuine dairy foods from their imitation counterparts.

The sweepstakes was announced in March by means of a four-color advertisement which appeared in Sunday supplements in Harrisburg, York, Philadelphia, Washington D.C. and Baltimore area newspapers.

The sweepstakes required consumers to clip the "REAL" Seals found in the newspaper ad and compare them with a "Good as Gold" game card in their favorite supermarket. Contest prizes included the Grand Prize of $10,000 in "real" gold or a check for that amount; five first prizes of $2,600 in free food; 100 Second Prizes of $100 in free food and 1000 Third Prizes of $20 in free food.

Shoppers whose "REAL" Seals did not match those on the game card could also enter a "Second Chance Sweepstakes" for a chance to win any of the unclaimed prizes.

First Prize winners in the sweepstakes were:

Glen Borden, Burlington, N.J., Pathmark;

Harry J. Butler, Washington, D.C., Safeway;

Mrs. G. Pattinson, Sharon Hill, Pa., Acme;

Sandy Rosner, Melrose Park, Pa., Shop N' Bag;

Barry Stackhouse, Leola, Pa., Acme.

Pequea Valley FFA is 'flying high'

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

WHITE HORSE — There may be better pheasant hunting in at least two spots in Lancaster County thanks to the FFA chapter at Pequea Valley High School.

Several chapter members and advisor Clair Witwer gathered early one crisp morning last week to release about three dozen birds which the chapter hatched and raised as a BOAC project.

Four dozen pheasant eggs were purchased by the chapter from Case Farm Hatchery at Brodbecks in York County. The non-fertile and chick mortality rate ended up to be about 25 percent.

But 35 of the four-month-old birds had their initial solo flights on Wednesday morning as the chapter members launched them beneath sunny, blue skies.

The birds – initially confused by their large, open surroundings – scattered in many directions and in many different ways.

Some of them headed for the tall corn.

Others really tried their new wings and sailed off to land in an alfalfa field.

A few played road runner and just scampered down lanes and off into brush.

And one could have used the help of an idle air traffic controller because it made a wide circle only to crash land with a dull thunk into the metal skirt of a mobile home. Only dazed, it walked away from the crash landing.

The eggs were hatched in an incubator about the end of April in the high school's ag department. When the birds became bigger, they were taken to the Ken Skiles farm at R2 Narvon to be raised in a former farrowing house.

A portion of the birds were released on the Skiles farm along Churchtown Road, northeast of White Horse, and the remainder on the James C. Landis farm on Rohrers Mill Road, southeast of Strasburg.

The Pheasant Committee of the FFA Chapter decided on the BOAC project (Beautify Our American Communities) because some of the members are hunters and lamented the disappearance of the pheasant clucks they had once heard early in the mornings near their homes.

Since a combination of cock birds and hens were released, it is hoped that Mother Nature will take over now and help replenish the pheasant population.

Taking part in Wednesday's release were chapter members Eric and Bruce Wanner, Brian McCauley, Jeff Feister and Bob Buehl.

AND AWAY THEY GO. Pheasants are launched on their solo flights by Pequea Valley FFA members, from the left, Eric Wanner, Bruce Wanner, Jeff Feister and Brian McCauley.

Norwegian lass serves as 'honorary dairy queen'

KUTZTOWN — It didn't take long for a visiting Norwegian lass, Anne Ragnhild Haug, to get intimately introduced to the agriculture of Lancaster County and surrounding areas.

Only in this country for a couple of weeks as an exchange student at Garden Spot High School, New Holland, for the next year, Anne was right in the midst of the 26th annual Southeastern Regional FFA District Dairy Show at Kutztown last week.

In fact, you might say she served as a visiting honorary "dairy queen" helping to congratulate the various chapter winners and hand out the trophies, rosettes and ribbons.

Hailing from the town of Porsgrunn (population 35,000), which is about 200 miles south of Oslo, Anne had her first closeup encounter with dairy animals of all breeds and area youthful breeders and exhibitors.

"I'm enjoying it very much," she remarked in excellent English as she prepared to move back into the Holstein ring to hand out another trophy.

"Also, I like your area very much," she added.

"The people have been very friendly. I like the little hills and green trees you have around here. We have much bigger mountains back home."

While Anne doesn't come from a farming background, there is an agricultural link in her family. Her father is an engineer with Norway's largest company, a fertilizer manufacturer. He designs the various buildings and plants involved in the company's manufacturing process.

Thus far, Anna has visited Victor F. Weaver, Inc. and Sperry New Holland and, of course, Park City.

She hopes to do a little traveling elsewhere and particularly wants to visit Washington, D.C.

She is staying with the John Mask family in New Holland. She will return home next July for her last year in high school and then continue her studies to become a physical therapist.

Norwegian visitors, Anne Ragnhild Haug, flashes her best Scandanavian smile for camera.

Steve Smith, of Ephrata's Cloister FFA Chapter, receives showmanship trophy from Anna Haug, visiting Norwegian student, who served as "honorary dairy queen" at Southeastern District FFA Show.

Pollock in WEA program

WASHINGTON, N.J. — Joni Pollock of Route 57, Washington, N.J. has been accepted to participate in the FFA WORK EXPERIENCE ABROAD (WEA) program this fall. The program is an international educational exchange activity of the Future Farmers of America and rural youth organizations in their countries.

A recent announcement from the National FFA Center, Alexandria, Virginia, noted that Joni will be placed for horticultural work experience for 3 months this fall near Rotterdam in the Netherlands. This is one of more than 25 countries participating in the exchange program.

By living and working with a family, Joni says that she will have the opportunity to learn about horticulture and their way of life. The Netherlands is a world leader in intensive agriculture and horticulture.

Joni is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pollock of Washington. Her vocational agriculture teacher at Warren Hills Regional High School is Jay Rupell.

NOTICE OF RATE FILING

Dear Customer,

Take notice that the undersigned is filing with Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission Supplement No. 84 to Tariff Electric Pa. P.U.C. No. 198 increasing your bills for service effective Oct. 27, 1981. The total increase of approximately $112 million (plus $7 million of tax surcharge) is approximately 10.6% of the Company's annual revenues, but the increase in your bill may vary slightly or substantially from this percentage, depending on use or applicable rate schedules. The annual cost of service to the average residential user would increase from $524 to $577, or by 14.5 cents per day. Upon request, the Company will inform you of the effect upon your bills. You may examine a copy of the material filed with the Public Utility Commission explaining the proposed increase and its justification at any of the following locations of the Company's offices: Two North Ninth Street, Allentown; Routes 309 and 22, RD #2, Allentown; 344 South Poplar Street, Hazleton; 1801 Brookwood Street, Harrisburg; 1701 Manheim Pike, Lancaster; 600 Larch Street, Scranton; and Route 220 East, Montoursville.

The proposed rate increase is subject to examination by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission which may suspend its effectiveness or institute a formal investigation thereof, or both, if it deems it appropriate.

Forms for the filing of a formal complaint may be obtained by you upon request to Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120. The timely filing of a formal complaint entitles you to a hearing at which you may present testimony and question Company witnesses, and places on the Company the burden of proving that the proposed rates are reasonable.

Chianina steers parade at Lebanon Fairgrounds

LEBANON — Chianina beef cattle enthusiasts and their celebrated bovines gathered here at the fairgrounds last Saturday for the 6th Annual Northeast Region American Chianina Association Field Day

It was a fun-filled day for those juniors and adults who tried their skills in the showmanship, type, and judging classes. And a 'fun' auction gave everyone a chance to bid on cattle equipment and other 'surprises,' with proceeds going for continuing Junior activities. Providing the auctioneer's chant was Ken Brubaker, of Brubaker Livestock Marketing, West Chester

The field day gave the participating youths an opportunity to run their clippers and lead their big, usually black Chianina entries in a steer and heifer show. With the popularity of 'Chi' steers in show rings around the country, there were plenty of animals for Judge Gary Minish, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, to study

There were so many entries that it was necessary for the showmen to take a break at noon for a Chianina beef lunch before wrapping up the competition in the afternoon.

Before selecting the grand champion steer out of the group of class champions, Judge Minish pointed out the steers shown at the Field Day would present "no problems with coarseness of shoulder, and therefore the cows would be able to calve with ease." He also pointed out that with the current grading changes looking for 0.3 inch fat, these steers make the grade.

The grand and reserve grand champion steers were the first and second place steers in 1130-1225 pound class

Showing the mammoth grand champ was petite Julie Yingst of Larwill, Indiana. The 17-year-old showman also exhibited the grand champion American Chianina heifer that was picked as the Field Day's supreme champion heifer For these winnings, Julie received two beautiful plaques and cash awards. A $1,000 prize was donated by Lauxmont Farms for the supreme champion heifer and Sears Roebuck donated a -$500 award for the grand champion steer

The reserve grand champion steer was exhibited by 18-year-old Margaret Hughes from R1 Portage, Cambria County. She received a cash award of $250 for her accomplishments along with a plaque donated by Dr. Lee Miller, Woodsboro, Maryland.

Showing the grand champion full-blood Chianina heifer was Karen Brothers, East Berlin, Adams County. The champ is one of five full-blood Chianinas that make their home on the 120-acre farm of Dr. and Mrs. Carl E. Brothers An additional seven crossbreds bring their total Chianina herd to an even dozen.

In the judging contest, the Lancaster County team, consisting of Jay Reiff, Jan Waltz, Manheim, Brian Hess, Conestoga, and Michele Dean, Strasburg, won the blue ribbon. In individual competition, Christy Kohr took first place in the junior division; John Fought won the men's division; and Lorraine Krause, won the women's contest.

In the showmanship competition, Julie Yingst was a winner once again, taking first place in the senior division The intermediate class winner was Willie Wilson, Mertztown, and the junior showman was Jay Reiff, Lititz the grand finale of the day. Serving as judges were Ken Brubaker and Bill Fairbairn, Genetics Unlimited. Participation was outstanding, from the 18 seniors and 24 intermediates who competed down to the 20 junior showmen. The youngest competitor was 8-year-old Garth Sweigard, Halifax.

York dominates 4-H district dairy show

Judge James Shaw termed the Holstein grand champion's udder "the most correct in the show."

Jersey grand champion with Helen Arrowsmith, R1 Peach Bottom.

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HARRISBURG — There must be something about those lush green pastures under the sunny skies of York County that can put that extra bloom on a dairy cow and its youthful exhibitor.

If it wasn't the pastures then it was something like good hard work and the guidance of parents and Extension personnel that helped boost York County 4-H'ers into the grand champion winner's circle a total of three out of six times at the Southcentral District 4-H Dairy Show on Tuesday at the Farm Show Building.

Top York County winners in the seven-county competition included:

Holstein – David King, of Delta.

Ayrshire – Scott Cooper, R2 Delta.

Guernsey – Todd Rutter, York.

Even the Lancaster County winner in the Jersey competition, Helen Arrowsmith, R1 Peach Bottom, could be considered a close neighbor, being only a short distance across the Susquehanna as the crow might fly from the Delta area.

Other breed grand champions were David Feidt, R1 Millersburg, Dauphin County, in Brown Swiss and Christine Young, R1 Newville, Cumberland, in the Milking Shorthorns.

Judge James Shaw, Holstein breeder from Oley, Berks County, selected the four-year-old of David King as the grand champion over the aged cow of J. Arlan Crider, of Chambersburg, which was named reserve grand champion.

"This four-year-old has the most correct udder, is the best bloomed cow and has a little more width to her," Shaw commented as the top rosette was awarded.

The grand champ Holstein, Kingstead Ari Tara, was bred by David's uncle of Kingstead Farm in Damascus, Md.

The reserve was El-Dor Gay Paula, bred by Arlan's father at their Franklin County farm.

The other type judge for the Guernsey, Ayrshire and Shorthorn breeds was John Morris, retired dairy specialist for the University of Maryland. Show results:

Boosting their breeds

Various participants and members of the audience at the Southcentral District 4-H Dairy Show in Harrisburg on Tuesday boosted their breeds through some T-shirt advertising.

The Jersey T-shirt wearer is Marlin Deaven, of Fredericksburg, Lebanon County, who showed in that breed's competition.

Helping out in the ring was Sandra Shetterly, of R1 Millersburg. Her T-shirt came all the way from New Zealand.

The cute little Holstein booster is Kathy Mase, of Lebanon County.

So while judging went on in the ring, a different form of competition was found on wearing apparel. We'll let you be the judge of that.

Milking Shorthorn grand champion with Christine Young, R1 Newville, Cumberland County.

Dairy princesses helping with Southcentral District 4-H Dairy Show on Tuesday include, from the left, Joanne Weidman, Lebanon County; Karen Hobaugh, Adams County; Vicki Bashore, Cumberland County; and Deb Greider, Lancaster County.

Test Forages - Before It's Too Late

Every summer I seem to get on a forage testing binge, and to many of you it may be the same old story. Nevertheless, this is an important thing for every dairy producer to consider, and now is a good time to be making plans for doing it.

It is always nice to have a feed program in your hands that's ready to use when you switch forages to start on your winter feeding program.

Silo filling time is rapidly approaching. For some farmers, it has already begun. To get a head start on planning your feeding program, sample some of the last silage you put into your silos—as you are filling it. This is the first silage you'll be feeding and if it was put in at about the right moisture—about 65 percent—it won't change much from fermentation.

At least, the test results will probably be much closer than your guesses, which you have to rely on if you don't test. Sample several loads, and put these samples in tight plastic bags to preserve their moisture When the filling is completed, mix the samples and immediately submit one sample for analysis

Be sure to request a feeding program also. Your feeding program may have to be based on the kinds and amounts of forages you anticipate feeding when you start on the new silage. Of course, this means you should also have your hay crop forages analyzed. This should be done now, even before the silo is filled.

Hay Sampling

Before sampling hay, be sure it has dried down to where it would be when fed—about 10 percent moisture. To accomplish this, you can throw a few bales from your recent harvest onto the barn floor and cut the twine to encourage more rapid drying.

Don't pull the bales apart because you want to save the leaves for accurate sampling. And, the only way to get an accurate hay sample is to use a hay sampling auger.

In order to get this first early feed program, it may mean you won't be able to sample hays that have been cut after the beginning of August. They may not be dry enough for accurate sampling and you won't have time to wait for them to dry down. You could sample them and feed them at a later date.

If you are feeding a little of your cuttings to your herd at the same time, you'll want to sample them proportionately. For example, if you feed 4 bales of aftermath cuttings (second, third and fourth cuttings) and 2 bales of first cutting hay each day, then you'll want to sample them in that proportion and submit just one sample for analysis. But, if you will be changing this ratio, or if you feed one batch of hay now and start on another batch later, then the batches should be tested separately.

If you are buying hay, consider buying ahead of time so you can stockpile hay for future use, instead of waiting until you're almost "out." You might have to borrow money to do this; but by stockpiling hay and by buying substantial quantities of fairly uniform hay at one time, you'll have time to test the hay and get a feed program before you feed the hay. And, you'll have a large enough quantity to justify the costs of testing and feed programming.

If you can accomplish this, and if the cows respond well to a good feeding program, the added milk and the reduced health problems should pay for much more than the interest. This will require some advanced planning—searching for a supply of hay, arranging for financing, etc.

Fine Tuning

The important point about all of this is to get an early start on a good feed program as soon as possible when you make that sudden and drastic switch from a summer program to a winter program

You might argue that the methods I have proposed (sampling unfermented silage) are not the most accurate, and I'll be the first to agree. But, it sure beats feeding "in the dark" for one to two months as you wait for late hay harvests to dry, as you wait several weeks for silage to ferment properly before sampling, as you wait for the samples to be tested and a feed program to be returned, and as you wait for your present batch of feed to be used up and until the time you can gradually convert your herd to the new program.

That's a long time! A lot can go wrong—and usually does—in that period of time, and the road to recovery is usually slow and tedious.

So, by starting early on forage testing and feed programming you can at least have a good guideline. You can sample later on, when the silage is fermented and when all the hay has been harvested and is dried down, to fine tune your feeding program.

When sampling feeds, remember that water is a major item and can greatly affect mineral intake and balance. It should also be considered.

Accuracy Important

I've been mentioning the importance of getting an accurate sample. This is always worth striving for. Because of the extremely variable nature of forages, we'll never be 100 percent accurate, but testing sure does beat guessing.

The greatest factor affecting the results of a forage testing and feed programming service usually is not the sampling and testing techniques, but how closely the recommended program is followed on the farm. You have to provide accurate herd data; body weights and forage consumption are two critical items affecting grain feeding recommendations.

When you get the feed program back, be sure the cows are consuming what is recommended. This means actually weighing all the forages fed—and refused. Do this periodically. There is absolutely no room for guess work! If the cows are not consuming what is recommended, their ration is not balanced. It's as simple as that!

Consumption may be off for several reasons. Failure to weigh the forages to determine actual intake (this is probably the biggest reason). Cows are off feed for some reason (find the reason and if intake does not change have the feeding program reworked on the basis of their actual intake). The moisture content of the feed has changed (test moisture content frequently and adjust feeding rates so their dry matter intake remains the same). Body weights are reported incorrectly (the larger the cow, the more she'll eat; perhaps we ought to report forage intakes as pounds per hundred pounds of body weight rather than pounds per head).

Proper feeding is basic to good health, good production and reproduction, and to good profits We can't afford not to do the job right

Nat'l sheep symposium makes U.S. debut

URBANA, Ill — Farmers and producers, animal scientists, teachers, suppliers and others will convene, for the first time ever in the United States, to learn about recent techniques in the field of sheep production during a "National Symposium on Confinement Sheep Production," September 9-11, at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis.

Faced with unparalled economic pressures — rising equipment, labor and land costs — more and more American farmers, regardless of geographical location, are turning to sheep production as a surprising secondary income which increases total profits without encroaching on primary cash crop land.

And, as increasing numbers of veteran sheep producers are now doing, the "new sheep farmers" are raising their sheep in confinement — a method traditionally reserved for beef cattle.

The demand for sheep has been steadily increasing over the past few years, coming back from its lowest point following World War II.

The movement towards confinement, though believed to have begun over 150 years ago in Iceland, has picked up momentum only recently in America. Other motivating factors, beyond the economic, are scarcity of shepherd labor and surplus of predators, usually wild dogs or wolves.

Internationally recognized experts in the field of sheep production will address the gathering, notable among them will be Dr. John Robinson, Rowett Research Institute, Aberdeen, Scotland.

Dr. Robinson will give a keynote address at 7 p.m. September 9, on "Improving Ewe Productivity," and he will also give an earlier lecture, at 1:10 p.m., entitled "The History of Confinement Production in Europe."

A highlight of the event will be a post-symposium tour of the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Agricultural Center, a leading research unit in the development of sheep management systems and use of slotted floors.

Another feature will be a session on "producer experiences" — when large-scale sheep producers will discuss typical management problems and resolutions.

Registrations are still being accepted. Cost of the symposium is $130 per person, which includes materials, sessions, proceedings, a banquet and luncheon.

The tour fee is an additional $55.

For more information about the conference, write or phone Mary Bussert, 116 Illini Hall, 725 S. Wright St., Champaign, Ill. 61820, telephone 217/333-2882.

Some of the topics to be discussed include: history and economics of confinement, genetics, health and nutrition, reproduction, environmental factors and facilities.

The event is sponsored by the University of Illinois' Cooperative Extension service, department of animal science, and Office of Continuing Education and Public Service, with the University of Missouri-Columbia; Sheep Industry Development Program; Illinois Lamb and Wool Producers; Missouri Sheep Producers Association; and "The Sheep Breeder" and "Sheepman" magazines.

A symposium proceedings will be available following the meeting, and according to Professor Gary Ricketts, animal science extension, University of Illinois, "it should be an invaluable, first of its kind resource for anyone involved in confinement sheep production."

BIO-4

PURINA®

NUTRI-CYCLE®

BIO-4

SYSTEM OF POULTRY FEEDING

A unique, patented feeding plan that temporarily uses the hen's body stores of protein and other nutrients for egg production. A specially-designed, lower fortified Nutri-Cycle (NTC) ration is fed 4 days after the hen is 40 to 45 weeks of age. She uses her body stores plus nutrients in the NTC ration to continue laying at a normal rate. Then her stores are replenished by feeding a regular Bio Layena® ration for 12 days. The cycle is repeated. Subsequent production remains normal, but feed costs are reduced.

Nutri-Cycle® Feeding Program:

- ★ Lowers cost of production
- ★ Improves feed efficiency
- ★ Increases saleable eggs

For more details about the Nutri-Cycle system of feeding poultry ask your Purina salesman or dealer, or request Purina Nutri-Cycle System of Poultry Feeding (P2686) from Purina.
